

Soil Meeting Set Nov. 11 at Evans Valley

Statesman News Service
SILVERTON—The Silver Creek soil conservation district officials will show motion pictures of their work at the Evans Valley Community club meeting Friday night, November 11, it was announced by Guy Sanders, program chairman. The program starts at 8 p.m.

Austin Sanford, local soil conservation service technician, will show the movie "For Years to Come" which emphasizes the need of a good livestock program on a farm, plus the advantages of contour cultivation.

In addition, Sanford will show "Green Harvest", developed by the West Coast Lumberman's association, showing the importance and value of farm wood lot management.

The Silverton chapter of the Isaac Walter League and the Silver Creek Soil Conservation district have agreed to cooperate in its conservation program. The two groups will arrange a big meeting early in the new year. A. T. Gribble, of the local league, attended this week's soil conservation district here.

In the meantime, district supervisors of the soil conservation area are sending letters to Governor Douglas McKay asking for the assistance of a state geologist to locate some reported lime deposits in the Silverton vicinity.

Sanford reports a "desperate need for lime on most of the hill farms in this area." If local lime deposits for even low grade lime could be located it would greatly assist the establishment of a good conservation program on many farms, he added.

Assistance from the soil conservation service is also being requested in establishing red clover stands on many of the worn out fields in the Silver Creek district.

A new conservation farm plan will be studied at a special meeting in the district offices here on November 18, starting 8:30 a.m.

Gold Shares Weakened in Stock Trades

NEW YORK, Nov. 10 (AP)—Gold shares took a lacing in an erratic stock market today.

Losses outnumbered gains for the market as a whole but price currents were thoroughly marbled as traders picked and chose their stocks.

Most changes were fractional, a few one to two or more points. Labor developments, which were mostly favorable, exerted little pull on prices.

Turnover topped the 1,000,000-share mark once more but was nothing to get excited about. Sales of 1,170,000 shares compared with 1,510,080 Wednesday.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks dipped 1.01 of one point to 67.9. The industrial group held unchanged but rails and utilities slipped.

A total of 1,083 issues changed hands, of which 480 declined and 321 advanced.

Gold shares weakened after President Truman came out with strong words to the effect that the administration was not considering raising the present $35 an ounce for gold price.
