

Orchestra Plays Two Concerts

A Salem audience will have its first opportunity of hearing the Portland symphony orchestra under the new director, James Sample, on Tuesday night, January 10, at Salem high school auditorium. The program is to begin at 8:15 and no one will be seated during the performance of a number.

This is to be the first of two concerts in Salem, the second being scheduled for March 21. Tickets are on sale at the Ladd and Bush branch, United States National bank until the concert, then may be procured at the door.

The program includes: Concerto Grosso in D minor (op. 3, No. 11) Vivaldi
Mozart
Largo
Allegro
Symphony No. 7, A major (Op. 92) Beethoven
Poco sostenuto: Vivace
Allegretto
Fresco: Frusto meno assai
Allegro con brio
Outdoor Overture of Kubla Khan Copland
The Pleasure Dome Griffes
Rumanian Rhapsody Enesco

James Sample, who took over the directorship of the Portland Symphony orchestra this fall and will conduct the group in the first of two concerts in Salem on Tuesday night at 8:15.

Seen and Heard...

By JERYME ENGLISH

GREETINGS . . . came at Christmas time from the Robert Weldens (Maxine Rogers), who with their two children, Deena and Dexter, are now living at Middletown, Pennsylvania . . . and incidentally their card was a darling Pennsylvania Dutch style Christmas greeting . . . Bob, a captain in the air force, is stationed there and is now flying some of the larger planes . . . They are nicely settled in a three bedroom house with a 1-1/2 yard . . . As the officer's club is nearby there are lots of social activities . . . The Weldens returned in the fall from a two year stay in Japan, but were unable to stop to see their Salem friends due to army orders . . .

PICTURESQUE VIEW . . . from every window in Nellie Schwab's beautiful colonial style home situated high on the north-west corner of Kingwood Heights . . . when driving out Glen Creek road one can see part of the house . . . On Sunday, right after the first snow, it was really a beautiful sight to see the Polk county hills, and to the east of the Cascades, all snowcapped . . . Except for two view windows in the living and dining rooms, the other windows are colonial with panes . . . The rooms, eight in all, are all spacious . . . lovely halls and a closet for everything . . . one that intrigued us was in the front hallway . . . double doors with narrow shelves filled with vases of every size and kind . . . When Nellie brings in flowers from the garden, come spring, she won't have to hunt for a vase in some dark closet . . . also a closet just for party accessories, card tables, chairs, cards, wrapping papers, etc. . . . Lovely carpeting throughout and beautiful selection of wallpapers . . . In one bedroom . . . ivy wallpaper with daffodil yellow draw curtains, which took our eye . . . In the master bedroom upstairs unusual Chinese wallpaper and two large twin lamps of Chinese red with matching shades . . . and the most popular room in the house and definitely the most used is the kitchen sitting room, which adjoins the main kitchen . . . here they eat all their meals before the windows (looking west) by a wood stove, which sits on a brick hearth . . . Dutch chairs in both of these rooms.

IN VIRGINIA . . . for six months are the Robert Sullivans (Paula Smith), who are at Petersburg, while he is taking in his reserve officers training at Camp Lee . . . They plan to be home in the spring . . . It was Christmas in New York for Paula and Bob, who were seeing the sights in the Gotham city for the first time . . . They called's Paula's parents, the L. A. Smiths of Stayton during the holidays . . . BEFORE THE HOLIDAYS . . . are entirely forgotten must mention a few outstanding gowns worn at the New Year's dances and at homes . . . Pretty, brunette Mrs. Lynn Hammerstad wearing one of the new day length evening dresses of azalea sheer wool . . . strapless and large pockets adorned with royal blue sequins . . . a matching stole and blue satin shoes . . . Mrs. James Payne in a pretty strapless cocoa brown lace gown with net flounce bordering the full skirt . . . Mrs. Walter Bell of Stayton in a bouffant grey taffeta dress caught up one side with a large pouf . . . Many comments about Mrs. Morton Caine's lovely gown of honey beige net with gold lame bodice and a stole . . . the Caines were down from Portland for New Year's as guests of the Bill Heals . . . Also dancing . . . the new day length becoming more popular . . . Mrs. Charles Wood choosing a smoke grey velvet skirt, creamy beige lace blouse, cerise velvet sash and cerise satin shoes . . . Mrs. Eric Toikka, also down from Portland for the holidays, and wearing one of the short formalists . . . a black strapless taffeta with cascade ruffle in back and matching mitts . . . Mrs. Ronald Jones stunning in a gold metallic pleated skirt and brick red long sleeved lace blouse, which extended over the hips and tied in front . . . Mrs. John Steelhammer in a good-looking tunic style gown of brown lace over satin . . . A charming newcomer, petite, brunette Mrs. Joseph Veich, wife of Dr. Veich, in a pretty rose pink satin gown fashioned with one shoulder and matching mitts . . . At five o'clock . . . Mrs. Horace McGee in a becoming chocolate brown crepe gown with deep yoke of shell pink and cascade ruffle in back . . . Mrs. Charles Campbell wearing golden satin with black blouse and cuffs of the satin . . . and Mrs. Russel E. Pratt in pretty pale mauve sheer wool dress with accordion pleated skirt and mauve velour hat . . .
