

Alumnae Notes . . .

Several alumnae groups have slated meetings for the ensuing week.

Gamma Phi Beta

Gamma Phi Beta alumnae will be entertained at a buffet dinner Monday night at the South Commercial street home of Mrs. John Carson at 6:30 o'clock. Assisting hostesses will be Mrs. Paul Hendricks, Mrs. Ernest Hobbs and Miss Harriet Huston. During the evening Miss Huston will tell of her recent European trip and show pictures. All Gamma Phis are invited to attend and any new alumnae in the city are asked to call Mrs. C. C. Higgins.

Chi Omega

Chi Omega alumnae will hold their regular monthly meeting Tuesday night at the North 13th street home of Mrs. Claybourne Dyer and Mrs. W. Connell Dyer at 8 o'clock. Following a business and social meeting a late dessert supper will be served. All alumnae in the city and vicinity are invited to attend.

Pi Beta Phi

A "fifth wheel" auction will be a feature of the January meeting of the Pi Beta Phi alumnae Thursday night at the chapter house on State street at 7:30 o'clock. Mrs. James T. Brand is in charge of the auction and members are asked to bring any white elephant articles.

Mrs. Douglas Chamber and Mrs. Burton Selberg are co-chairmen of the hostess committee which will serve a dessert supper and assist in the auction. Mrs. Barbara Causey, Mrs. John Hughes, Mrs. Jack Woodfield, Mrs. John McCullough and Mrs. James Taylor.

Republicans to Discuss Plans

The Women's Republican club will meet on Wednesday night at the chamber of commerce. Plans for the spring session will be made. Mrs. C. A. Sprague is president of the group. Interested women are invited.

Harry Collins, county chairman of the Republican club, will tell what the men's group is planning and will discuss coordination between the two groups.

Luncheon for Mothers

Luncheon club of Job's Daughters, Bethel 35, will meet for a noon luncheon on Wednesday at the Masonic Temple. Special guests will be mothers of Bethel UD. The hostess committee includes Mrs. H. Aston, Mrs. Francis Graham, Mrs. Harvey Gibbons, Mrs. Malcolm MacDonald, Mrs. M. E. Rasmussen, Mrs. G. C. Herrig, Mrs. O. R. Eckersley, Mrs. Clyde Bancroft, Mrs. Elmer Griffith, Mrs. Eldon Cone and Mrs. Harriet Spies.

There will be no meeting of the Thursday club in January, according to announcement made by the secretary Mrs. Lewis Griffith. The president, Mrs. F. A. Elliott, is now in Portland at the home of her son and daughter-in-law, the John J. Elliotts, recovering from a recent illness.

Mrs. Louis White and Mrs. Cee Roberts will entertain members of chapter BQ PEO, Monday night at the former's home at 7:45 o'clock.

Heads Auxiliary . . .

Mrs. Maynard C. Shiffer, who is serving as president of the Marion county Medical auxiliary this year. The auxiliary was first organized in 1927 with only a few members and now the roster numbers 85. The purpose of the auxiliary is to acquaint doctor's wives with each other and take an interest in health measures, both locally and nationally. The group also participates in philanthropic work, where it deals with health problems. Social and program meetings are held once a month on the second Tuesday at homes of members. Flapper Look Really Back For Spring and Summer Wear

By Dorothy Roe
Associated Press Fashion Editor

NEW YORK — Meet the flapper of 1930. She's been on the way for some time, but this spring's fashions will put her squarely in the vanguard of the style parade, which she led so confidently back in 1925.

From her short skirts to her shorter hair, she's back, like it or not. New York designers are showing spring styles so reminiscent of the roaring twenties that the nation's fashion editors, arriving for the semi-annual showings of the couture group of the New York Dress Institute, will rub their eyes to be sure they're not seeing a playback of a jazz-age movie.

The tight sheath dresses, the wraparound coats, even the peekaboo georgette blouses of the flapper era are back in the spotlight. There is, however, one reassuring difference—though the styles are similar to those of 25 years ago, the shape of the girl who wears them, Miss 1930 insists on retaining her natural curves and her slim waistline, and not for all the cables in Russia will she consent to the flat-chested "boyish form" of 1925.

The chemise dress, that straight sheath with the bathing suit neckline so popular in the Charleston era, is a major trend of the season. Sometimes it is shown as is, in georgette or chiffon, complete with beading. Sometimes it is worn beneath a sheer redingote or overskirt, which disguises its uncompromising straight lines.

Transparent georgette, nylon net or tricot, organza and chiffon are all over the spring fashion picture. In solid colors or prints, they are to be seen in practically every top collection.

The short evening dress also is a highlight of the spring collections. Most dance frocks are short, bouffant organdies in white or pastel colors, with yards and yards of sheer fabric in the skirts and only a scrap above the waist. Shown also is the dark, draped strapless sheath dress with a cover-up, bolero, for less formal wear.

The spring coat picture is more varied, but most popular is likely to be the "little overcoat" with big sleeves, often elbow length and deeply cuffed.

There also is a return of the dressmaker coat in navy or black silk faille or a mixture of silk and worsted. This usually is fitted, nipped at the waist, rounded as to sleeve and shoulder, flared as to skirt, and full-length.

Many spring suits go in for large sailor collars or wide, flaring lapels. Skirts are uniformly straight and slim, noticeably shorter than last year's styles.

Though the trend is definitely nostalgic, many simple, wearable clothes are to be found in the spring offerings, and the woman of conservative tastes will have little difficulty in finding clothes that are both flattering and unostentatious. The slim silhouette which dominates all collections is certainly more becoming to the average figure than the late, unlamented "new look."

Waistlines, though in some instances edging downward, are in most cases normal. Though the silhouette is rounded over the belt, wise designers for the most part are adding discreet shoulder pads, because they know that most women's figures demand them.

State Board Luncheon

State board of the University of Oregon Mothers will meet in Salem on Thursday, according to announcement made by the state president, Mrs. George H. Swift. A luncheon will be held at 12:30 o'clock at Godfrey's with a business session following at the home of Mrs. George Alexander.

Twenty-four are expected to attend the luncheon meeting and board members from Salem include Mrs. Swift, Mrs. Alexander, a director; Mrs. Robert M. Fitzmaurice, secretary; and Mrs. Grant Fallin, president of the Salem branch, University of Oregon mothers.

Youth Program for Monday Meeting

Wesleyan Service guild of the First Methodist church will hold its regular January meeting on Monday at the home of Mrs. John Carlin, 495 North Summer street at 8 o'clock.

Young people who attended the National Methodist Youth Conference at Urbane, Ill., will give the program on "Youth, Our Partners in Kingdom Building."

Mrs. Norma Shaw, Mrs. J. M. Hartley, Mrs. L. Blades and Mrs. Cleo Rose will be hostesses.

Miss Donna Lou Lambert, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin F. Lambert, who recently revealed her betrothal to Eldon Caley, son of the Ralph Caley, at dinner at the Delta Gamma sorority house. Both are sophomores at Willamette university. (Jessen-Miller).

Don't Look Now . . .

but . . . we remain calm through fire, and we show no signs of excitement in a flood, but get us caught inside a garment with a stuck zipper and we're a raving screaming hysterical woman.

Reward enough . . . We gave a candy came to each of two little girls, walking along our road one day just about Christmas. When her mother asked "What do you say?" The shy of the two smiled and said "You're welcome." She was right, it was our great pleasure and we should have been the one who did the "thanking." We'll remember it much longer than she.

Disillusioned . . . When we got a brand new orange and white calendar from the drugstore, the daily weather forecast was printed thereon. We were betrayed in our faith the very first day, when it told us that we were to have "fair" weather last Sunday. Think how many persons all over the United States looked at that calendar and believed in it and maybe went on picnics!

What can a person think, anyway, when he can't even believe in weather predictions?

Subversive activities . . . You don't go out these complicated modern days and buy a sack of flour, a package of breakfast cereal, a cake of soap or a bucket of lard. You have to know the code. You buy Soft-svelvet, Pyemix, Bysquyx, Wheezies, Sox, Nix, Whimsies, Flaksie-Waksies or Mixo, and what do you get? We don't know, we haven't learned the code. Sometimes we are going to fool the clerk, we'll say gimme a sack of flour, a package of breakfast cereal, a cake of soap and a bucket of lard." He will probably never be able to fill our order, he won't know our language.

Sure way . . . There are two accurate ways of proving one's old age is creeping up. First, when you notice that all type used on labels, in newspapers and magazines, is getting to be so very small; and second is when one day or else of snow is all you can take.

Textile Printing Classes

SILVERTON — Textile printing will be taught in a group of classes to be started January 17 in the Washington Irving building. The hours are from 7 to 9 each Tuesday night. Jack McCall, art teacher in the Silverton high school, will teach the classes. The classes are free of charge as a part of the project under the Community Chest service.

Block printing will likely be followed by a class in ceramics.

League of Women Voters will meet for a discussion and sack lunch on Wednesday at the home of Mrs. John R. Goldsmith, 301 Kingwood Drive, between 12 and 2:30 o'clock. There will be a review of the work of the governor's committee on child welfare with Mrs. Cornelius Bateson as leader. Miss Eleanor Stephens, state librarian and a member of the governor's committee, will give a report.

Rotana club will be entertained Monday night at a dessert supper at 7:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Lester Thomas, 1595 Roosevelt street with Mrs. E. D. Nelson as co-hostess. Mrs. George Rossman will give the book review, "The Big Fisherman," by Lloyd Douglas.

Mrs. Carl W. Emmons and Mrs. Lynn E. Switzer will entertain members of chapter BC, PEO, at a covered dish luncheon on Tuesday afternoon at the Emmons' home on Fawcett avenue at 1 o'clock.

Delta Gamma mothers will meet at the chapter house on Court street Monday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Hostesses will be Mrs. Grace Marquand and Mrs. Charles S. McElhinny.

Salem Memorial hospital auxiliary

Members will meet at the hospital chapel on Monday afternoon at 1:30 o'clock. Mrs. L. S. Heuperman is chairman of the hostess committee, assisted by Mrs. Minnie Melvin, Mrs. I. W. Geer, Mrs. Charles C. Edwards and Mrs. W. H. Barber.

Mrs. E. M. Page will preside at a one o'clock luncheon on Monday afternoon at her Court street home for members of the Travel Study club.

Pythian Sisters will hold joint installation with the Knights on Wednesday night at the hall with a covered dish supper preceding at 8:30 o'clock for all Pythians and families. Mrs. W. A. Stanton will be installed as the most excellent chief and Mrs. D. M. Stanton is the retiring chief.

Spinsters will meet Monday night at the Garden road home of Miss Carolyn Brady at 8 o'clock. Assisting hostesses will be Miss Sally Ann Barr and Mrs. Travis Cross.
