Council Okehs Truck Law At Silverton

SILVERTON—Approval of an ordinance regulating truck parking, discussion of a taxi-cab control ordinance, plans for an addition to the city hall, water improvement, reports and the appointment of two members to the city planning commission occupied the city council Monday night with George Christenson as acting mayor.

The truck ordinance, passed on its third reading and effective at once, prohibits overnight parking of trucks and trailers on Silverton streets. The trucks may, city councilmen pointed out, park free of charge on the city parking lot off South Water street.

Taxi Law Studied

Chief of Police Victor Grossnickle brought to the attention of the city officials the need of a taxi-cab control ordinance in Silverton. At the present time the local police have little control over the taxicab drivers other than in ordinary traffic violations, Grossnickle pointed out. An ordinance now in force in Klamath Falls was read by City Manager Robert E. Borland and discussed by the council, who felt that further study should be given before action was taken, although they concurred with the police chief that regulations were needed.

A motion was carried authorizing Borland to complete estimates for building an addition to the southside of the hall to house additional fire trucks. Estimates of both a complete one-story and a two-story with possibility of a second floor are to be submitted by the city manager at an early special meeting to be called by Mayor C. H. Weiby, who did not arrive in time Monday night to conduct the meeting. Possibility of using the upper floor, should it be built, for an extension to the city library, was mentioned.

Re-Alien, council member pointed out that the library was overcrowded and something to alleviate this would have to be before too long.

Fire Addition Set

Early plans called for putting the new addition to house the trucks on the northside. Manager Borland stated that further survey of building did not make this appear feasible. Cost in putting in the necessary retaining wall, closing the entrance to the basement, now on the north side and the fact that the available space on that side was "awfully narrow" make the southside seem the better proposition. No definite action could be taken, however, until estimates on costs and more definite plans were ready.

The council members were agreed that some water improvement project should be considered before long. Recommendations from the city planning commission are expected after its January 23 meeting, Christenson stated. He explained the commission has been working over plans, as suggested by the council at an earlier meeting, determining flow of water in the Abiqu, from where the city water supply is now taken, as well as costs of dams. Christenson also reported that commission members hoped to arrange a meeting with the state engineer prior to its final recommendations. Borland reported that meter readings showed that 24,889,380 gallons of water were consumed during the month of September.

I. E. Alfred and Rholin Cooley, the latter chairman of the Silverton Planning commission, were returned each for another four year term. Their terms had expired on January 1.

Fines Reported

Report of the city police judge, Arthur Dahl, showed that a total of $143.50 fines had been levied and collected during December.

Walter VonFlue, appearing for the Silverton Co-op Lockers, in reference to erecting a building on its property reported that if present plans materialized, the co-op hoped to build during 1950. The new building is to be between Lewis and Jersey streets on First street.

Francis Schmidt reported that the children's Christmas program had been a great success with 600 children treated by Santa Claus and his helpers.

Reporting for the street marker committee, Tony Traeger stated that the final survey showed that about 211 sign posts would be needed and that the cost would approximate $1000. Carl Mucken, A. A. Ebner and Louis LeDoux, speaking for the city council, stated that the city would take over the financing of the signs and that the cost of the house numbers would have to be paid by the citizens, the cost of which would not exceed $1 per home.

Frank Hettwer thanked the club members for their fine work as waiters at the patrons' meeting of the Mt. Angel Cooperative creamery when 1500 people, the largest crowd ever served in one day, were served the celebrated creamery sausage dinner in the record time of 75 minutes.

Special thanks were also accorded the Mt. Angel Garden club for judging the outdoor Christmas decorations at the various homes in Mt. Angel for which the Business Men's club awarded a total of $35 in cash prizes.

Penner and George Schmidt volunteered to solicit the memberships for the coming six months.
