Houtteman Gets '49 'Courageous' Label

PHILADELPHIA, Jan. 30.—(AP)—Art Houtteman, 22-year-old pitcher for the Detroit Tigers, tonight was named "most courageous athlete" of 1949 by the Philadelphia Sporting Writers association.

The youthful right hander was honored because of his remarkable comeback last year after he was left near death in an auto collision in March. He came back to pitch two months later and won 15 games.

Houtteman joins a list of "courageous" athletes that include such prominent sports figures as Gene Bearden of the Cleveland Indians, Lou Brissie of the Philadelphia Athletics; Meryl Frost, war-burned football star for Dartmouth university; Pete Gray, one-armed baseball player; Bob Aliman, blind Pennsylvania wrestler; and Mickey Cochran, former manager of the Detroit Tigers.

The Sporting Writers also honored Steve Van Buren of the Philadelphia Eagles, National Football League champion, as the "outstanding athlete of 1949" and Leon Hart, All America end from Notre Dame, as "college lineman of the year."

But it was the award to Houtteman that was the high point of the Sporting Writers' annual banquet. The Detroit pitcher accepted a plaque honoring his courage before a gathering of 1,200 at the Broadwood hotel.

Houtteman, who compiled a wretched record of two wins and 16 defeats during his rookie year of 1948, was the victim of one of the most amazing series of bad breaks ever to befall a baseball player in one season.

Lewis Seeking Slump Remedy

Uncovering a remedy for the bad slump that has caught up with his Willamette Bearcats in their last three games, Coach Johnny Lewis busily occupied this week as he makes ready to again face the Pacific Badgers next Saturday night.

The hustling Badgers upended WU last Saturday here, 64-48, to put a big bite into the Bearcats' Northwest conference title plans. As things now stand, both Willamette and Pacific are tied for the loop lead.

Just what has gotten into the team that was the class of the circuit in the earlier going has Lewis perplexed. The presence of so many young and unpredictable sophomores on the club is one good reason for the relapse, believes the popular mentor. But he's wondering, after losing to both Whitman and Pacific in the last two conference games, just how long the slump will continue.

Heavy drills are on the ticket for most of the week as Lewis attempts to work his charges out of their hole. They'll again be well on the way to the championship if they can get by the Badgers Saturday. Next home game for WU comes February 7 when OCE's Wolves visit.

Beavers Drill

For Husky '5'

OREGON STATE COLLEGE, Jan. 30.—(Special)—The Oregon State Beavers, equipped with Coach Slats Gill's personal scouting report, went to work in earnest Monday in preparing for their crucial games with Washington's Huskies here Friday and Saturday.

Gill watched the Huskies in both games they played at Oregon last weekend. On the strength of their showing during the Beavers' swing through the Palouse recently, sophomores Jim Padgett and Jim Nau may move into the starting lineup for the Husky opener, along with Bob Payne, Dick Ballantyne and Bill Harper. Both were impressive at Washington State and Idaho.

Heavy drills are planned by Gill for Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday.

Cougars broke even. Oregon's next home game is with Oregon State February 10. Back in the northern division race again after two wins over Washington, the fired up Webfoots will go all out to make their road jaunt a successful one.
