State Hospital in Colorado Conducts Classes in Charm

PUEBLO, Colo.—(INS)—Women patients at the Colorado State hospital at Pueblo like the classes in self-improvement and charm which the Morganti School of Modeling conducts at the institution.

The mental outlook of the women patients taking the courses has improved so much that night classes now have been added.

Among the patients benefiting from the original course, started several months ago by Cesare Morganti of Denver, were two who have been able to return home from the state mental hospital.

The first course was given to nine women. Five of the original patients became so interested they now are conducting the classes for eight a week among other patients.

Attendees report that the general interest in self-improvement is stimulating troubled minds that have not been reached by other means.

In the classes, which are free, patients are shown how to walk and sit and attain correct postures. They also are given hand exercises, exercises for finger faults, routines for grace, and relaxing exercises.

The patients also learn about conversation, hair dress, color charts, types of clothes and other matters of personal appearance and charm.
