Fieldman for Jersey Cattle Club Guest of County Chapter

I. W. Slater, western fieldman for the American Jersey Cattle club, was guest of the Marion County Jersey Cattle club at a special meeting Saturday night at the conference room of the Interstate Tractor company and of the Clackamas County club Sunday at Oregon City.

Slater reported on the expansion of Jerseys in his territory, which includes Washington, Idaho, Oregon and Utah, with special emphasis on Oregon.

Oregon, Slater said, showed a large expansion in both registration of new animals and of transfers in the last 10 years. From 1929 to 1943 the average registration of new animals was 9,833 while from 1944 to 1949 inclusive this was 12,536. Transfers from 1939 to 1948 averaged 5,616 and in the last five years, 9,517. Expansion in Oregon was heaviest, he pointed out, in the newly irrigated locations such as Malheur and Jefferson counties.

Slater also touched upon the milk situation reporting that the Jersey have the highest fat percentage and also the highest average of solids not fat. He stressed the work being done by Dr. G. A. Richardson at Oregon State college in his investigation in milk marketing study. All breeds of high test milk, Slater stated, should encourage the completion of this study and recommendations made for placing butterfat contents on the bottle, made by Richardson, should be followed in future pricing programs.

Highway Travel Slumps Sharply During January

EUGENE, Feb. 12—(Special)—Highway travel in Oregon "took a terrific beating" during January, according to Marvey Blythe, manager of Oregon Highway 99 association, who blames it on the weather.

But all highways through the state showed a decrease in traffic, compared with January, 1949, at the California-Oregon 11 n. e. While the association tries to encourage travel on Pacific (99) highway, during January storms it could only advise "better stay home."

Comparative figures for January at the southern border show a drop from 21,292 to 16,754 cars on highway 99; 10,560 to 8,368 on The Dalles-California (97); 5,586 to 4,698 on Redwood highway; 6,990 to 6,898 on Coast highway (101).
