Wood Product Employment Tops Last Year

Employment in Oregon's basic wood products industry held up better in January than during the cold spell a year before and was mainly responsible for a slight increase from early 1949 in non-agricultural jobs, the state unemployment compensation commission reported Tuesday.

During the first month of the new year 59,800 persons were working in logging, sawmills and other wood processing as compared with 55,400 in January, 1949. Employment in furniture, food processing, textiles, metals and machinery fell off slightly during the year, however, with the result that the gain in manufacturing was only 2,000 over the 105,100 reported a year before.

The number of jobs in construction, transportation and utilities also was somewhat lower than in early 1949, but small gains in trade, finance, service and local government almost balanced non-manufacturing totals.

More settled weather in the past two weeks has led to rehiring of many seasonal workers but the mid-February figures are expected to show but little change from the month before.

Non-agricultural employment of 263,200 last month was 34,600 lower than in mid-December and 60,200 below last September's seasonal peak of 443,400. About 20,000 fewer were working in logging, lumber and wood products, while peak employment of 26,200 in food processing and 29,000 in construction was almost cut in half. Poultry picking and highway and dam layoffs were mainly responsible for the December-January drop in these lines.

Retail trade jobs fell off 8100 from the December top, but still were above a year ago and only 3400 below last September. The automobile field showed gains over both January and December, 1949.

Reapportionment Plan Filed With State Elections Bureau

Reapportionment of the state legislature is asked in a proposed constitutional amendment filed Tuesday with the state elections bureau.

The proposal was filed by the non-partisan committee for balanced apportionment, headed by A. Freeman Holmer, Willamette university political science professor.

The amendment would raise membership of the senate from 30 to 36 and would affect 60 members of the house.

One representative would be provided for each county according to population. No county would have more than 15.

The senate would be apportioned according to population except that no senate district would include more than three counties and no county would have more than one-fourth the total senate membership.

Under the plan, Multnomah county would have 15 representatives. Marion, Lane and Clackamas would have three each, Douglas and Linn would have two each with all others rating one seat.

Nine senators would be provided from Multnomah county, three from Lane and two each from Clackamas and Marion. Washington, Columbia, Clatsop, Yamhill, Polk, Benton, Linn, Douglas, Josephine, Jackson, Klamath and Umatilla counties all would have one senator.

Remaining counties would be grouped into eight senatorial districts of as nearly equal population as possible.

If petitions containing 25,042 signatures are filed by July 6, the amendment will go on the ballot at the November election.

The amendment provides that if the legislature fails to reapportion according to these standards, the duty of apportionment would fall to the secretary of state who would be subject to mandamus.

Advisor Group Study Bids for Hillcrest Post

Members of the advisory committee for Hillcrest Girls school and the Oregon Boys school near Woodburn met Tuesday in Salem to consider applications for the position of superintendent of the former institution.

Actual appointment of the new superintendent will be made by the state board of control on recommendation of the advisory committee.

Corn Imports Ban Ordered In Quarantine

A new quarantine order prohibiting entry into Oregon, except under certain conditions, of corn and other products which may carry the European corn borer is now effective. E. L. Peterson, state agricultural department director, announced Tuesday. This replaces the corn borer quarantine order of 1945.

The new order will no longer permit entry into Oregon of shelled corn, seed of corn, broomcorn, sorghum and sudan grass from any of the 19 infested states unless products have been fumigated or have been cleaned of stalks, cobs, stems and other debris before leaving the infested states, and officially certified.

Similar quarantine action to keep this agricultural pest from the west coast was taken recently by Washington, Idaho and California officials.

Parole Groups Seek Members

An annual membership appeal is now being conducted throughout Oregon by the state committee of the National Probation & Parole association.

Gov. Douglas McKay Tuesday said, "In the business of making probation and parole effective instruments of justice the national association has become one of the foremost organizations for control and prevention of crime."

Warden George Alexander of the state penitentiary is executive chairman of the Oregon committee. Other Salem members include Earl T. Newbury, Paul Wallace, Charles A. Sprague, Judge George Rossman, R. S. Keene and Guy Hickok.

New Polio Council Organized To Inform City of Local Work

A new polio council has been organized in Salem to help the city's civic and fraternal organizations better understand the work of Marion county's chapter of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Victor Withrow of Salem's Eagles lodge, Willamette aerie 2081, suggested formation of the new council at the February meeting of the local polio chapter.

Withrow predicted that future polio drives might be more successful if people understood just how badly money is needed to fight the disease and if they knew how money collected is spent.

Mrs. David Wright, president of the Marion county polio chapter, approved the idea and asked Withrow to promote his plan.

Ten persons have been named to the council and will attend the next meeting of the polio chapter, scheduled March 2 at Salem Memorial hospital.

They will report on the polio chapter's activities to the organizations which they represent and are free to suggest ideas to the chapter.
