Triple Purpose Dish Provides Moderate Priced Kitchenware

By Sue Gardner

One of the most practical types of kitchenware in the moderate price bracket is the type of baking dish in which you can bake, serve and store food. The clear glass ovenware is familiar to all housewives. They add an interesting note to a table when filled with such colorful contents as home-made cranberry sauce, or green jellied desserts. Individual or family-size casseroles are good in the clear glass.

Recently there have been added a number of icebox storage dishes which can also be used in deep freeze units. After removing the tape from the storage containers, you can heat the dish in the oven. Any leftovers can be put in the icebox in the same container, saving extra dish washing.

The colored mixing bowls in the ovenware are good serving pieces for parties, and hold potato chips, cheese fancies or fruit when your guests come for the evening. The new square and oblong baking dishes are very attractive for buffet style entertaining.

The large covered oblong casseroles that come with covers in sunny yellow or bright red make wonderful shower or housewarming gifts. The cover can go back on after the first serving, keeping the dish hot for the second helpings. Here again the dishwashing problem is lightened by having the serving and baking dish in one.

The glass flameless is also popular and comes with a wire plate that will distribute the heat properly if you want to use it on a type of burner that needs this device. The double boiler, saucepans, teapots and percolators are most attractive and can come to the table. An oven roaster, pig and cake dishes are handy for dining room use. Heat-proof measuring cups are good for cooking where hot liquids need to be measured. You will find this type of utensil both sturdy and long wearing when properly handled.

Birthday Week Program Slated

Marking the opening of Camp Fire National Birthday week, March 12 to 18, the Camp Fire Girls in the Willamette area will join other Camp Fire friends all over the world in religious services Sunday, March 12. Dressed in their red, white and blue service costumes the girls will attend their own church, or will go as a group to the church of their selection.

The theme for this fortieth Camp Fire Birthday week is "Discovery Unlimited — An Adventure in Creative Living". Due to the generosity of Joe Randall of the Golden Pheasant, a "Hobby Lobby" will be on display in the chamber of commerce on March 17 and 18, giving each group the opportunity to show what it has found and done in "Discoveries Unlimited". The display will be open to the public on Friday afternoon, March 17 and Saturday until 3 p.m.

In addition, groups all over the city will be holding birthday parties for Camp Fire, either singly or with school groups.

The presentation of birthday honors given for the special achievements of the girls during birthday week will take place at the Grand Council fire on April 22 in the Leslie jr. high school auditorium.

Bruce Wayne is the name given to the nine pound son born to Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Hadley on Tuesday night at the Salem General hospital.
