General discussion of a number of school problems — in connection with the current survey of Oregon's elementary and secondary school systems — highlighted a meeting Monday of Dr. T. C. Holy's advisory committee and his staff members.

The survey is being conducted under the direction of Dr. Holy, Ohio State university educator, whose temporary headquarters are in the state capitol building. His report will be filed with the state board of education prior to the 1951 legislature.

Morphet is conducting an investigation of state organization, administration and supervision, while Reller is majoring in local organization, administration and supervision. Lawler's study is confined to financing public education.

99% of our farms enjoy the benefits of electricity!

Yes, in the area PGE serves, farm electrification is amazingly close to 100%! Lower and lower electric rates and constantly broadening distribution facilities have brought modern electrical living to nearly every farm in the lower Willamette Valley.

The farmer of this region, like the city dweller, can use electricity in abundance. Here we use 3 to 4 times the national average, at a cost per kilowatt hour that is only half the national average.

And over the years, cost per kilowatt hour has come down and down. PGE home electric rates have been cut 16 times, have been increased only once, in the last 25 years.

On the farm as in the city, electricity is today's biggest bargain. PGE intends to keep it that way in the years ahead by continuing to supply you with more and more of electricity's convenience and comfort at lowest possible cost.
