Columbia Basin Projects Lost

Senator Says

WASHINGTON, April 15 -(AP) Senate rejection of an amend-ment to the $1,800,000,000 waterways bill to set up a Columbia basin account in the Pacific northwest denies the area about $460,-000,000 in aid for irrigation projects, Senator Magnuson (D-Wash) said today.

He said in a statement the record shows that had the amendmen t been approved, irrigation projects would have gained these amounts: Grand Coulee $427,000-000; Kennewick $3,200,000; Roza. Yakima, Kitttitas and other existing irrigation projects in Washington state approximately $30,-

Magnuson asserted the amendment was defeated chiefly through the opposition of Senator Cordon (R-Ore) who contended that it would take money from power revenues paid by the people of the northwest to subsidize irrigation projects that are not feas-

Cordon said also that the Columbia basin account was so worded that it contained hidden meanings that would forever deprive the people of the northwest of taking over the power pro-ects after their cost has been returned to the government.

Early action on a separate bill to create a Columbia basin account, will be sought, Magnuson
