Under the rural school district law a single levy is made for the area outside of first-class districts. in previous years since the rural school district law was passed, in 1945, the Marion county voters have approved a budget far in ex-cess of the levy permitted under the six per cent limitation. This year the extra levy appears to have failed by a tie vote. No revote may be had as with other taxing districts, an amendment permitting that having failed of The only alternative is for the individual districts to vote extra levies on themselves large enough to maintain their schools. Where the school population is large and assessed valuation relatively low the burden will be extremely heavy. Kaizer for example may face a total tax levy of a hundred mills or over (exact information was not available Friday because county offices were closed). De-troit will be in a tight squeeze because of the large influx of children for work on Detroit dam. That district has lost its railroad valuation too. Whether aid will be available from the federal government through the army engineers will have to be explored. What happened is the revolt of

Voters Turn Down Portland Tax Proposals

PORTLAND, May 20+(AP)-Voters left Portland in a financial quandry today, apparently turning down all new revenue measures for the growing city.

The city and Multnomah county asked the voters to approve five revenue bills, pleading that a city now grown to 400,000 was trying to get along on a budget intended reserve headquarters from 10 a.m. for 300,000.

Incomplete returns from 374 of 461 precincts in an election yesfighter planes are scheduled to terday indicated only the least expensive of the measures was winning approval. That was for a city auditorium.

Losing by sizable margins were proposals for a $2,500,000 city income tax, and a $2,443,000 annual county property tax. Also being down was a $2,500,000 turned special city property tax. A smaller levy asked for park improvement: also was trailing.
