Don't Look Now . . .

but . . . my! what handshaking has been going on around here. The women may gush and say "My dear, fancy seeing you here," but the men shake hands, hit each other on the back and shout "Glad to know you, Smith" when they are bored to death meeting Smith.

Summer variety . . . Those odd looking islands of high grass in our lawn aren't caused by "dead sheep" like we used to be told made the grass grow high out in a big field, they are because we have decided that the simplest way to do the work is to run the mower around the bones and rubber dolls, stick and rocks our dog Sam distributes here and there. He must have been a carrier pigeon in his other incarnation, he's always moving something from one place to another and looks so hurt when we pick things up.

Up in the air . . . There's nothing like a colossal show of air power to impress us. Didn't those eight planes filling the sky Saturday just thrill you. It was armed forces day, you know.

Clear the decks . . . We are eating strawberries like mad - the frozen ones, before our new crop ripens and we have to put more down in the freezer. So far, we are glad to report, there are no hives - the itchy ones.

Take a look . . . We were told that the silk tree on the postoffice lawn was killed by the cold. Though we haven't checked, we hope not, for it has been one of Salem's most beautiful trees and has caused much enjoyment for years.

They can have it . . . Glancing through a 104 page booklet on control of pests in the garden, we conclude that we could spite them most successfully by letting them take over the garden all for their very own . . .

BEAUTIFUL IN DETAIL . . .

The Salem Zonta club's silver tea on Wednesday at the lovely and spacious home of Mr. and Mrs. Daniel J. Fry. Although the weather man didn't put on his sunniest smile guests admired the gorgeous blooms in the garden from nearly every window . . . especially beautiful the view from the upstairs den overlooking the terraces and garden . . . Yellow furniture predominating on the stone terraces with glass top tables . . . potted petunias in shades of red, white and blue arranged on the terrace wall . . .

The guests . . . the right size crowd, not too many at one time and never a line waiting to be served, which so often happens at benefit teas . . . this was due to the fact that the tea hours also extended into the early evening . . . Mrs. Fry wearing a becoming pure silk afternoon dress of Wedgewood blue with a small black print design . . . the club president, Mrs. Robert M. Fischer, Jr., choosing a navy blue gown . . . Dr. Helen Pearce in a navy with yellow all over design . . . and Miss Genevieve Morgan wearing an all over print with pansy design predominating . . . Two new members assisting . . . Schucking receiving comments on her unusual corsage of glorious lilies, which shade from yellow to a burnt orange . . . and lovely with her cinnamon silk and eyelid gown . . . Miss Mary Larsen in a smart mint green suit with print blouse . . .

The decor . . . One of the largest bouquets of lilies we have ever seen arranged in a large glass vase in the living room . . . and striking against the pale green paneled doors . . . Again we must mention the tea table . . . a solid mass of lilies-of-the-valley arranged in small crystal candelabra holding white tapers . . . simple, but beautiful . . . and pansies in a white milk glass stemmed dish on the large round table in the den . . . the floral arrangements all by

Mrs. Fry.

Among those calling . . . Mrs. Charles Heitzel and daughter, Kathy . . . Mrs. Hugh Whipple up from Roseburg and with her sister, Mrs. Charles McElhinny . . . the latter pinned double white lilies to her black ensemble . . . Mrs. Phil Patterson of Portland and a guest of Mrs. E. H. Kennedy . . . Mrs. Harry Dorman in grey with navy and white accessories coming in with Mrs. A. A. Rogers . . . Mrs. John Powell in from her Turner home . . . Sister duo . . . Mrs. Mona Yoder and Mrs. William Newmyer, both smartly dressed in navy . . . Three Salem Women's club members together . . . Mrs. Howard Humaker, Mrs. Merle Travis and Mrs. Grant Rogers . . . Janet Rilea in a grey outfit and her sister-in-law, Mrs. Thomas Rilea, Jr., among those serving, wearing a yellow tie silk pleated dress with small white polka dots . . . Mrs. C. Ronald Hudkins and her sister, Mrs. Marion Moore . . . Mrs. P. Dixon Van Ausdell, Jr., chic in a toist suit with matching accessories . . .

Over two hundred dollars realized from the tea . . . all to go to the club's Helen Yockey Memorial fund for the new Salem General hospital.

QUEEN'S BALL . . . Crystal Gardens the setting for the Job's Daughters first annual queen's ball last Friday . . . A grand turnout with many of the junior high group attending . . . the girls so attractive and sweet in their long dresses and for many it was their first dance and first formal . . . a night long to be remembered . . .

The two honor guests . . . Queen Ann Gibbons of Bethel 38 in a mist blue organdy full skirted dress with an American Beauty sash . . . Queen Edna Mae Manning of Bethel 48 wearing a strapless gown of blue lace and noel . . . the queens given flowered crowns at a ceremony earlier in the evening and leading the grand march with their escorts, Jim Todd and Jack Nelson . . . Tucker-Loaiza Nuptials on Saturday

At a simple but impressive ceremony on Saturday afternoon at the First Congregational church Mrs. Wenceslao Francisco Loaiza, daughter of Mrs. Katharyn Shannon Metsker, became the bride of Lt. John Eric Tucker of Portland. It was at 3 o'clock that the Rev. Seth Huntington performed the nuptials before a setting of white lilies. Jean Hobson Rich played the wedding music.

Lighting the tapers were the bride's two sons, Stephen and Glen Loaiza. Stephen gave his mother in marriage and for her wedding she wore an original Omar Kiam navy blue costume suit of mirlolreen. The jacket was fashioned with buttons up the front and her navy blue felt hat was adorned with white pique trim. She wore navy and white accessories and her bouquet was of white cymbidium orchids with variegated ivy streamers.

Shannon Loaiza was her mother's maid of honor and wore a navy and white outfit and carried a bouquet of white carnations and variegated ivy. Mrs. John Vincent Chantres Davis of San Francisco and Shanghai was the matron of honor and wore a grey suit with white felt hat. Her flowers were American Beauty roses combined with the ivy.

Guy Tucker of Portland stood with his brother as best man and seating the guests were Loren Mort, John R. Hay, Robert Shannon Tongue of Hillsboro and Ernest Dodge of Portland.

For her daughter's wedding Mrs. Metsker chose a slate blue silk suit and off-white velvet hat with blue veiling. The groom's mother wore a dark green ensemble with pink accessories. Their corsages were of cymbidium orchids.

The newlyweds greeted their guests at a reception in the fireplace room immediately following the rites. Mrs. Edmund Burke Tongue of Hillsboro and Mrs. Ernest C. Dalton of St. Helens presided at the coffee urns. Mrs. Ernest Dodge and Mrs. Myron E. Foster cut the bride's cake. Assisting were Mrs. Edwin Payne of Longview, Mrs. Carl Horton of Portland and Mrs. John Clark of Willits, Calif. The bride's table was centered with an arrangement of deep rose and pink carnations, stock and snapdragons.

After a wedding trip the couple will be at home in Jennings Lodge. The bride is superintendent of Hillcrest School for Girls and her husband, with the Oregon State police.
