

Chisox Lineup Did Chicago Benefit By Trading Michaels?

NEW YORK, May 31 (AP)—Now that the Chicago White Sox have completed their big deal with the Washington Senators, the pale horse question of the season switches from "Who's on first" to "Who's on second?"

Along with first-line pitcher Ray Scarborough and seasoned first baseman Ed Robinson, the Sox yesterday got second baseman Al Kozar in exchange for American League all-star second sacker Cass Michaels, pitcher Bob Kuzava and utility outfielder Johnny Ostrowski.

Michaels was the king-pin of the deal. Manager Bucky Harris of the Senators admits he coveted the 24-year-old Michaels, who batted .308 last season and currently is hitting .312 this season. New Manager Red Corriden of the Sox concedes it was a big sacrifice to let Michaels go and that it may take two men to fill his shoes.

As the Sox moved in to face the Yankees in the opener of an eastern swing tomorrow night, Corriden said he would use Kozar, a right-handed batter, at second base, but might replace him with Nelson Fox, a left-handed hitter, against right-handed pitching.

Kozar, who will be 28 on July 4, last year batted .269 in 105 games. General-Manager Frank Lane of the Sox said he felt the combination of Kozar and Fox will give the club better defensive strength at second, even though Michaels' clouting may be missed.

If Michaels was the deal's main item for the Senators, the acquisition of Robinson and Scarborough met a crying Sox need. First base has been wide open in the Pale Hose camp since spring training.

Fancy-fielding Gorman Goldsberry is the most recent claimant to the job. Herm Reich and Charley Kress were cut loose after flings at the position and aging Appling was lined up as an emergency candidate.

If Robinson comes anywhere near matching his 294 hitting of last season, he has the first base job clinched.

How badly the White Sox needed a right-handed pitcher of Scarborough's caliber is reflected in the fact the House had only three of their 13 ins to date fashioned by right-handed tossing.

Fight Skinners Boycott IBC

NEW YORK, June 1 (Thursday) (AP)—At the stroke of midnight, fight managers launched a boycott of the International Boxing club, which controls fights in New York and several other centers.

The move took effect with expiration of the television-radio contract between the IBC and the Managers Guild.

Guild members say they will not sign for any more bouts with the organization until their demand for a 50 per cent cut of radio and television receipts is met. The IBC refuses.

There is no immediate prospect of a settlement between the two groups and the "cold war" may freeze boxing out of Madison Square Garden next season or longer; that's how serious the situation is.

There is growing sentiment against boxing by some members of the Garden's board of directors. They have been demanding, it was learned, that boxing be tossed out altogether, and the dates allotted to more profitable events.

Friday nights, when fights are held, are choice dates in the Garden.

As it is, the middleweight title scrap between Champion Jake LaMotta and Rocky Graziano in the Polo Grounds June 28 could be the last big fight show for New York in a long time.

One Pitch Too Many

The spring softball season had just one too many pitches for Gus Klempel, 44, of 4215 Shoreline dr. Klempel was playing shortstop Wednesday night for First Baptist church in a game against Free Methodist church. It was the final inning of the final game of the season.

With two out, a batter smashed a line drive straight at Klempel. He caught it for the third out. He also incurred a compound fracture of the ring finger on his left hand.

City first aid men sent him to a physician.

Pitchers Find Relief Roles Pay

NEW YORK, May 31 (AP)—More and more pitchers are turning to the rescue role as a steady diet now that Joe Page has proved it pays to be on relief.

With an eye on Page's $35,000 salary, such former successful starters as Mickey Harris, Washington; Bill Werle, Pittsburgh; Walt Dubiel, Chicago Cubs; Al Brazle, St. Louis Cardinals and Jim Konstanty, Philadelphia Phillies, are devoting their pitching careers to relief.

Some like Harris and Konstanty have made their switch with a great deal of success. Not only have they insured their stay in the big leagues, but they've played a big part in the rise of their clubs.

The Phillies have played 39 games and Konstanty has appeared in 16 of them. They've won 22 and he's worked in eight of those although officially he's credited with only three triumphs.

Harris has worked in 10 of Washington's 36 games and has appeared in six of their 19 victories. He was credited with the one triumph.

Others influenced by Page's work and turned exclusively to relief include Howie Judson, Chicago White Sox; Paul Calvert, Detroit; Ed Eraut, Cincinnati; Andy Hansen, New York Giants; Erv Fallica, Brooklyn; Tom Ferrick, St. Louis Browns and Jesse Flores, Cleveland.

Pep arrived in town early Tuesday morning for a brisk workout. Young finished up his heavy drills expecting to weigh in at around 138, which would give him a six or seven pound edge over the titlist.

Brooks Win Exhibition

BATTLE CREEK, Mich., May 31 (AP)—The Brooklyn Dodgers showed plenty of power in their reserves by handing the Battle Creek All-Stars an 18 to 1 shellacking today in an exhibition contest. He drove in nine runs in all, four of them on a grand slam homer in the third inning.

Solons Have Their 'Stopper' Now

Liska May Be Just What 'Doc' Ordered for Club

All ball clubs have, or at least should have, what's called a "stopper"—a pitcher who is talented enough to stop both the enemy two-thirds of the time he faces him and any losing streaks his nine happens to encounter.

The Salem Senators found their man at Tacoma Tuesday night in Boss Ad Liska himself. Just in time, too, for the Salems had lost six in a row and were getting much too close to the second division in the WIL standings.

It was Liska's maiden voyage for 1950, his first in the league after posting 192 victories for Portland in 14 years in the Coast league. His 4-2 conquest of the loop-leading Tigers Tuesday served not only to knock a game from the Tiger lead but also to snap the Salems from a slump that was reaching the disastrous side.

The slender submariner had hoped his pitching staff, made up entirely of youngsters, would be rugged enough to go all the way in the WIL race. He didn't intend doing any pitching himself until it was necessary. The necessity having arrived, Liska can now be expected to insert himself into the games more regularly. He may even take his regular turn on the mound. If he does, his next outing will be in Waters field the coming weekend against Tri-City.

Cardinals Sign Idaho Sensation

ST. LOUIS, May 31 (AP)—A youthful pitching sensation from Cambridge, Idaho, who has hurling three no-hit games, has been signed to a contract by the St. Louis Cardinals, the club announced today.

He is Edward G. Ludwig, an 18-year-old southpaw, who lost only one game of 23 games he pitched for the Cambridge high school in the last two seasons.

The six-foot, 170-pound athlete is not a power player, although he received the maximum amount allowable outside that classification. He was signed to a contract with the Columbus club, the Cardinals' farm club in the American association.

Hill Prince's 'Bleed' Okay

NEW YORK, May 31 (AP)—Hill Prince's celebrated nose-bleed was a prime topic of conversation to day around the Long Island horse barns.

Although Trainer Casey Hayes said it was nothing serious, some horsemen wondered whether Chris Cheney's Virginia flyer would be such a shoo-in for the Belmont Stakes next week after all.

At any rate, it looked as if at least a half a dozen colts — including Kentucky Derby winner Middleground — would challenge Hill Prince for the big $75,000 pot at Belmont park June 10.

Hill Prince pulled up third in the rich suburban handicap yesterday, bleeding slightly from the nose. Hayes checked the colt closely again this morning, and assured one and all that the bottled son of Princequillo would be out there pitching in the Belmont — final number in the triple crown.

Gags Will Be Plentiful

Celebrities Await Annual Links Meet

WASHINGTON, May 31 (AP)—Hope, Hogan, Berle, Kaye, Winchell, Thorpe, Godfrey, Chandler, Holman, Hubbell, Leahy, Milkan, Sinatra, Macfady, Snead, and the Babe.

Those are only a few of the names who will compete in the star-studded fourth Annual National Celebrities Golf tournament June 3-4 at Army-Navy Country club.

Tournament Director Bus Ham who is sports editor of the sponsoring Washington Post has lined up one of the greatest collection of stars ever to compete in a sports event.

Even energetic Bus admits "it looks like the best field we've ever had."

The tournament—a 36-hole funfest—is being held to raise funds to combat juvenile delinquency throughout the nation. The idea was fostered by Supreme Court Justice Tom Clark when he was attorney general.

This year Attorney General J. Howard McGrath plans to give three special awards at the tournament. Two will go to winners in the Associated Press Mid-Century poll and the other to "The Mighty Mite" Ben Hogan for sports' greatest comeback.

The two AP winners who will receive the special awards are Babe Didrikson Zaharias for being voted the top woman athlete of the past 50 years and Jim Thorpe for being the greatest all-around athlete.

Plenty of gags are assured for the meet which puts duffers against pros with the nation's top radio, television and film comedians in the lineup. From Hollywood will come Bob Hope and Danny Kaye to team up with "Uncle Miltie" Berle, the video screen and Arthur Godfrey.

Baseball Commissioner A. B. (Happy) Chandler who has the strangest swing in golf—he looks as though he's swinging at a knee high fast ball—tops the diamond group.

Generals, cabinet members, Wall Street and Broadway figures stud the list.

And last but not least there are plenty of good golfers in addition to Hogan. Guys like slugging Sammy Snead for example.
