

Steelhead falls on the Deschutes river near lower bridge. Arrow points to old fishway which will be repaired in near future to allow up-stream migrations of fish.

At Bend last Sunday we talked with L. M. "Len" Mathisen who is the resident biologist for the game commission in that area. Len tells us that a thorough study is now underway in an effort to learn what may be done to improve the fisheries conditions on the Deschutes and Crooked rivers as well as on countless other streams and lakes. We learn from Len that old timers can remember when salmon and steelhead used to be seen far up the Crooked river and into the Ochoco where the reservoir now is offering bass and catfish to the anglers in that area. The new dam at the Cove on the Crooked is now of such character that the entire flow of the river can be shut off for about one-quarter mile and diverted through the power house. There is no sign of a fishway over the dam. Just another one of those projects showing no interest in the possible damage to fisheries on the stream. Power first and the devil with the fisheries. Our guess is that before too long there will be a new fishway over the dam at the Cove damsite to enable steelhead and salmon to continue on up the river to suitable spawning areas.

Len, who sat comfortably in an easy chair while his wife was busy shooting young Mathisens to bed, told us other things that are going on in the Bend and Deschutes area. Reclamation Bureau Planning Project Seems the Reclamation Bureau is surveying at present for another project in the Benham Falls area. Seems also that part of the Deschutes river drops down a hole in the ground somewhere near Lava Islands and the Bureau is not sure where it comes out again, if at all. So they want to dig a ditch approximately seven miles long and line it with concrete so they can carry the Deschutes river from Benham Falls around Lava Islands without having any loss of water. Of course it is the job of men like Len to make as complete a study as possible to determine if the river is more valuable to the area as a sports fishery than it is as a site for a big dam.

Seals Decision Beavers 2-1 in 14-Inning Duel

SAN FRANCISCO, June 15 (AP)—First Sacker Les Fleming's hard single into centerfield broke up a pitching duel in the 14th inning tonight to give San Francisco a hard-earned 2 to 1 Pacific Coast league victory over Portland.

Fred Johnson, in shading Portland's Red Adams in a ferocious hill duel, gave up but seven hits over the long route. Adams yielded 10.

The Bevs tallied in the first frame and then were blanked for 13 consecutive frames by Johnson. The Seals tied at 1-1 in the sixth.

Scott is Out For Ten Days

Smith's Fine Relief Chore Beats Locals

ATHLETIC PARK, Victoria, June 15 (Special)—A brilliant relief chore by Ronnie Smith tonight helped Victoria's Athletics take a 3-2 win over Salem in their Western International league series opener here. Smith totted for 6½ innings after starting Victoria Pitcher Johnny Marshall and Catcher Al Ronning had been ejected from the game in the third inning for protesting on pitches called by Umpire Lee Perkins.

Salem's Johnny Tierney was the victim tonight, taking his third loss of the season against 11 wins. He gave seven hits and walked four and fanned four. Tierney's mates could get only five hits behind him, three by Dick Bartle and two of those doubles.

Victoria scored in the fifth on an error and Jim Moore's double. Salem finally nicked Smith in the eighth on Bartle's double, a passed ball and Wasley's fly-out. The A's won the game in the eighth on K. Chorlton's triple and Joe Kronberg's long double.

The loss dropped Salem nine games out of first place and one game below the even .500 mark.

Bad news hit the Salem camp today also. Shortstop Wally Scott, spiked below the right knee in Vancouver by Len Eran last night, had to have five stitches in the wound and will be sidelined for at least 10 days.
