"AROUND

THE CORNER"

By DICK ECKLEY

From the daily crop reports that I have been receiving from our produce men, the prospects of cheap canning fruits this year is about out of the question.

At the present time we have California apricots for canning. The quality is good but the price is high. So far, supply is able to keep up with the demand, but we expect to see the supply dwindle within the next few days. It might be advisable to purchase a case or two of canned apricots now if you don't plan on canning your own. Canned apricots are sure to take a jump in price as soon as the new pack is out. The same situation will prevail during the peach season.

Watermelons are exceptionally good at this time and we always have cold melons on hand for your convenience.
