The answers to everyday insurance problems ★

QUESTION: While on a fishing trip last fall, I was casting and accidentally snagged a friend in the back of the neck. The hook had to be cut out and though the wound was painful, it wasn't at first serious. Later, however, it became infected and as I insisted on footing the medical bills, I paid dearly for my carelessness. I've been told that there is a form of insurance which covers this sort of accident and I would like to know what it is and how expensive it is.

ANSWER: The insurance coverage to which you refer is given by a Comprehensive Personal Liability policy. The premium is very small and the policy covers your own legal liability and that of your wife and all minor children. Injuries caused by sports accidents are specifically covered.

★ If you'll address your own insurance questions to this office, we'll try to give you the correct answers and there will be no charge or obligation of any kind.

Nearly all Salem bakeries reported they had plenty of work to do supplying local needs.

Doctors Plan Advertising Drive To Combat Socialized Medicine

By Rennie Taylor
Associated Press Science Reporter

SAN FRANCISCO, June 27—(AP)—The American Medical association here announced a precedent-breaking advertising campaign to fight socialized medicine and boost voluntary health insurance.

The announcement establishes a precedent because doctors traditionally have shunned advertising. Their code of ethics prohibits them from advertising for practice and they have self-imposed restrictions against the use of their name in newspaper stories except under certain prescribed conditions.

In the campaign the AMA will spend $1,100,000 on newspaper display advertising and radio time. An advertisement will be run during one week in October in 11,000 daily and weekly newspapers. Radio announcements will be made throughout October. The $1,100,000 is a part of the $3,000,000 budget allotted by the AMA this year to its publicity representative, Whitaker & Baxter.
