Don't Look Now...

but... It took the Horace Heidt show to make the police notice that after concerts the corner of Capitol and D streets is a mess. This has been going on for some years every time the Community Concert series functions. With the signal going normally (long north-south moving period, short east-west period) the traffic piles up apallingly. Why not a policeman stationed there after those large concerts, to avoid congestion?

Ho hum... one's taste for work decreases in direct proportion to the proximity of one's vacation. Our's comes next week and it's so hard... to work... this... weeee...
