PORTSMOUTH, England, Aug. 20—The British aircraft carrier Thesus leaves Portsmouth, England, on its way to join other British naval forces operating on Korean waters. The Royal Navy disclosed a possible case of sabotage aboard the vessel four days before its departure. Electrical wiring which led to the ship's gyro compass was found smashed. The navy said the damage was easily repaired. The Thesus is a 10,000-tonner and carries 40 planes and a crew of 850 men. (AP Wirephoto from The Statesman).

Allies Reported 'Dragging Feet' In Rearming

LONDON, Aug. 20—(P)—The United States will tell its Atlantic pact allies Tuesday they are dragging their feet in the race to re-arm against Russia.

Informed sources said this word will be passed to the 12-nation council of deputies by its American chairman, Charles M. Spofford, at its second session here.

Spofford, just back from Washington after presiding at the first talks last month, is expected to tell his colleagues that their plans fail to provide enough manpower, skimp on the switch-over from peace to war production, are too slow and lean to heavily on the United States for money, men and materials.

Spofford told newsmen that he found in Washington "a very great determination that the United States is prepared to do its full part in the speedy build up of the defenses of the North Atlantic area—based on the confidence that the other members are prepared to do their full part."

"Returning now for the second session, we hope to take other concrete steps in that direction," he added.

Immediate job of the deputies is to arm and man western defenses from the Arctic to the Aegean in the next two years. Four main subjects on their agenda for Tuesday:

1. Manpower. Here the immediate poser is how to treble at least—the combat forces available for defending Europe. Present estimated western strength in Europe is around 14 divisions. The idea is to have a central western army based in Europe.

2. Money. The French have suggested financing the overall rearmament program by setting up a pool to which each nation would contribute proportionately. Economically weak nations would get more help than economically strong nations. The British have a counter-plan which they base on "fair shares for all." It's still secret.

3. Arms. The problem is to get production wheels rolling at once, without too greatly damaging individual economic recovery programs. All agree sacrifices by individual nations are inevitable. Few agree on the extent to which extra burdens should be undertaken.

4. Organization. This includes setting up an international staff and providing for much closer coordination between the partnership's several agencies.

13,000 Brave Heat to Hear Billy Graham

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 20—(P)—Billy Graham, founder of the youth for Christ movement, started his fifth week of evangelistic sermons here today. He already has preached to over 400,000 people in what he reports is the most successful campaign of his career.

His sermon today, to 13,000 persons crowded into the specially built tabernacle, was a fundamentalist description of heaven. Graham said heaven was "as real as Los Angeles."

The assembly was his smallest Sunday afternoon crowd since he opened the revival program. A sizzling heat wave of four days has apparently kept many at home. Hundreds turned away today from the outdoor seating facilities when the open-sided roofed tabernacle was filled.

Later this week, the young evangelist plans a mid-town rally at noon hour for the convenience of office workers. Graham said he hopes to have 50,000 turn out in the park mall near the business district. Police department aides were preparing to handle 20,000.
