OSC Predicts Normal Year, Despite War

OREGON STATE COLLEGE — Prospects are good for keeping the staff intact for the coming year, and for students to continue their education in nearly normal numbers despite the partial mobilization, reports E. B. Lemon, dean of administration and acting president in the absence of President A. L. Strand on a federal assignment.

A special committee consisting of deans Paul Dunn, George Gleeson and F. A. Gillfillan, with Associate Dean Earl Price is assisting in keeping up-to-date on all governmental rulings applying to staff and student status.

"A survey of the college staff is now underway to determine the number belonging to civilian components of the armed forces," Dean Lemon reports. "Every effort will be put forth to keep the staff intact, at least until the way is determined in which the institution may be of greatest service in the over-all program of the country."

Only a limited number of the most reservists on the staff are expected to be called unless the emergency is prolonged, since most are above the age limit of those now sought by the government. Deferment of younger staff reservists will depend on individual circumstances.

The present draft law provides that local boards may defer students who are actually enrolled until the end of that college year. Dean Lemon emphasizes, however, that nothing can be done to obtain such deferment, either in the case of reservists or students subject to the draft, until the man is actually called to report.

Chemeketas Return from Canada Trip

More than 40 Salem Chemeketas and guests returned here Sunday from a two-week outing to Banff national park, Canada, site of the club's 19th annual outing.

K. I. Jennings, spokesman for the group, said the trip was thoroughly enjoyable despite weather vagaries that included rain every afternoon and a blizzard that thwarted a climb to the top of Mt. Victoria.

About 10 members climbed halfway before the storm forced them to turn back. A similar group climbed Mt. Temple, a lower peak, without mishap.

Committee to Help Landscape Salem's Streets

Appointment of a new committee to formulate a program for tree and shrub plantings along Salem streets was announced Saturday by Mayor R. L. Elfstrom. He named Elizabeth Lord as chairman, Edith Schryver, Mark Taylor, Milton L. Meyers and Paul B. Wallace. Miss Lord and Meyers served on the former city park board and are on the present parks advisory committee. Taylor is a former Salem Men's Garden club president, and the other members have been active in park interests.

The commission was recommended by the city planning and zoning commission. The mayor has asked it to pay special heed to a policy for replanting on trees whose parkings have been sliced away in constructing the one-way highway grid.

Patton Predicts No Sharp Rise In Farm Prices

No immediate increase in agricultural prices in excess of the proportionate boost in the cost of production was anticipated by James G. Patton, Denver, Colo., president of the National Farmers Union, he stated in an interview in Salem Sunday.

"The farmers, as a whole, appear moderately well off," Patton said, "despite that prices of some agricultural products have decreased as much as 30 per cent." He emphasized that prices of machinery and other necessities purchased by the farmers have continued firm.

In commenting on reports that an emergency in which all the "freeze" agricultural prices, Patton said this would be unfair unless similar action was taken in connection with wages and industrial profits. This, he continued, is an emergency in which all the people are interested and any "freeze" should not be confined to a single classification.

Insults Cattle
The visitor said one serious food shortage in the United States at this time involves cattle with production far below the increase in population.

In referring to the war situation, Patton believed "too many people apparently fail to realize the seriousness of the Korean situation or troublesome events that may follow. There is every indication that the United States and allied countries are facing a long and difficult struggle."

Spends Time at Capital
As a member of the national security advisory board, Patton said he was spending a large part of his time in Washington, D. C. He declared the advisory board was all out for complete mobilization of war essentials at home and military on the fighting front.

The National Farmers Union chief will attend a conference of Oregon Farmers Union leaders here Monday, and will leave Tuesday for similar conferences in California and Utah. He is accompanied by Mrs. Patton and their son, and Mrs. Patton's mother. They are being entertained at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Jones, president of the Oregon Farmers Union.

Moscow Paper Carries Story, Picture of GI's Captured in War

MOSCOW, Aug. 20 (AP)—The Literary Gazette published a picture Saturday purporting to show a group of captured Americans in North Korea signing the Stockholm peace petition—and in the same edition carried a story which called American soldiers "uncultured gangsters."

The picture did not identify any of the soldiers. It merely showed them in a group, one with pen in hand. (The so-called Stockholm peace petition, is a communist supported appeal for outlawing the atom bomb, for which the world claim millions of signatures.)

The Gazette's correspondent in North Korea signed the story characterizing American doughboys as gangsters. It was in the form of an interview with a prisoner of war, identified only as "Paul Sanders, son of a rich Indiana farmer."

(At Shoals, Ind., Mr. and Mrs. John Sanders operators of a small farm and sawmill, said they believed their son, S/Sgt. Paul R. Sanders, was the one interviewed. He is listed as missing in action. Sanders' father commented angrily "If I had a rifle and I were over there, I'd show them how poor I am.")

Prisoner Queried
The Soviet correspondent, Alexander Chakovsky, said he asked Sanders how he got to Korea. "An order," this gangster from Indiana sullenly replied," the story continued.

Chakovsky said he then asked Sanders about his political opinions and was told: "I don't mess about in politics."

"Who is Charles Dickens?" Chakovsky said he then asked. "Sanders did not comprehend the question and then said 'O, that's something for children,'" the story continued.

"The soldier then made an observation which requires no comment: 'I have no notion of culture,'" Chakovsky wrote.

Likened to German
The correspondent likened Sanders to a German captive soldier he once interviewed. The German, too, said Chakovsky, claimed he was following orders.

Chakovsky then wrote that he had talked to another American soldier who was captured "dead drunk."

"These are the American storm-troopers—stupid toughs from some place like Indiana or Oklahoma, picturing themselves as supermen, yet cowardly talking about orders," the correspondent commented.

The story said many American soldiers were surrendering willingly. He described the U. S. military position in Korea as a "shameful collapse."

Salem Man on B-29 Raid

TOKYO, Aug. 20—Lt. Col. Roland A. Campbell (left), pilot, of Spokane, Wash., and Capt. Donald R. Allenby, plane commander, of Salem, Ore., chat over coffee at an airbase in Japan after their B-29 had taken part in mass precision bomb attack August 15 (U. S. time) on North Korean forces along the Nakdong river. (U. S. Air Force Photo via AP Wirephoto to The Statesman).

Wirephoto Tells Salem Family of Son's War Duties

"I didn't know he was in Korea until yesterday," said Mrs. T. N. Allenby, 1450 Oxford st., Sunday on learning that her son was pictured in a U. S. air force photo released to The Statesman and other Pacific coast newspapers by AP wirephoto.

Her son, Capt. Donald R. Allenby, was in Salem on leave about a month ago. He has been in the service since 1941, has a wife and three children in Spokane. His mother said she received a card from him Saturday stating he was in the war zone.

FLOWER SHOW THURSDAY
MILL CITY—The Mill City Garden club will hold its first annual flower show Thursday at the recreation hall here. The show will get underway to the public at 2 p. m. with a talk by Mrs. G. W. Stellmachre of Tangent, who is vice president of the Santiam district of the Oregon Federation of Garden clubs.

Final Rites for Race Driver Set Wednesday

Funeral services for Eugene Fred Gilbert, 21-year-old hot-rod driver who was killed Saturday night in a race near McMinnville, will be held at 10 a. m. Wednesday at St. Mary's Catholic church at Shaw.

Recitation of the rosary will be at 8 p. m. Tuesday from the Howell-Edwards chapel of Salem with burial in Belcrest Memorial park. Gilbert, a native of Salem who lived his entire life in this area, was killed when his car spun out of control and crashed through a fence at the Shodee track near McMinnville. The youth had driven several times at the Hollywood bowl north of Salem.

He was born here Dec. 31, 1929, and was a member of the Knights of Columbus of Salem and of Salem's G company of the national guard.

Survivors include his widow, Jeanne M. Gilbert, Aumsville; a daughter, Christine Lynn, Aumsville; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Gilbert, Aumsville; a sister, Georgia Gilbert, Portland; and grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. John Fieber, Toledo, Ore., and C. T. Gilbert, Salem.

Jersey Cow Wins Rating

Sybil Golden Princes Ella, a registered Jersey cow, owned by I. F. Buysier and Son of Woodburn, was awarded the Totted Dam rating by the American Jersey Cattle club this week. She won the distinction for having three offspring with official production records.

The cow's descendants averaged 8,326 pounds of milk and 489 pounds of butterfat in twice daily milking.

Nylon ropes are becoming popular with cowboys and rodeo-riders for lariats.

Polled Hereford Group Plans Ahead for Auction

Oregon Polled Hereford association will hold an auction on March 12, 1951, with a show on the preceding day, Walter H. Fisher, Oregon City, president, has announced Saturday. The sale will be held at the state fairgrounds, he added.

Don Coin Walrod, secretary, reports that the sales committee is now soliciting animals for the sale between the ages of 12 and 27 months.

Salem Seabee reserve leaders are moving into high gear their recruiting campaign in connection with a national goal of bolstering Seabee reserves to 75,000 strength.

40 Boys, Girls Carry on 4-H Dairy Projects

By Lille L. Madsen
Farm Editor, The Statesman
Approximately 40 boys and girls are carrying on dairy projects under the 4-H program in Marion county, Anthon Riney, county extension agent, told Sunday at the August meeting of the Marion County Jersey Cattle club. The meeting was held at the William Vogt farm near Salem, with Floyd Bates, Salem, presiding.

Youth Day was observed with Riney and Leonard Hudson, the latter vocational agriculture director at Silverton, as the speakers.

Riney favored heifer calves being given to boys or girls when they are nine or 10 years old. For older youths a cow that has just calved or is about to calve will make the better project, he said. Show to Start

The 4-H club fall show to start Wednesday at the state fairgrounds was also discussed by Riney, as he stressed the dairy show and showmanship contests scheduled to start at 12:30 Friday noon.

Hudson told about the calf program sponsored by the Silverton Rotary club. In this a calf is given away each year to some boy in the Silverton Future farmer classes.

A milking parlor similar to the one installed at the Pacific International Livestock show at Portland, was favored for the state fair. Vogt was made a committee of one to work toward better milking conditions at the fair. Bates stated he realized that this improvement could not be made in time for the 1950 fair but hoped "something would be done before next year."

Better sleeping facilities for youths showing at the state fair, were also hoped for at future fairs.

Animals Selected
D. C. Brock, chairman of the county herd committee, reported that eight animals had been selected for the Marion county herd to be shown at the state fair. Herds to be represented in this are those of Leonard Lee and Floyd Bates of Salem; Warren Gray of Marion, Henry Zorn of Aurora and Rex Ross of Mt. Angel.

Neal Miller reported on the recent Oregon State Jersey Cattle club directors' meeting held in southern Oregon and announced that the directors would meet in Salem Wednesday of this week.

T. R. Hobart, county secretary, reported on the success of the state heifer sale held at Ontario on August 12. Hobart served as secretary for the sales committee.

Marion county club will meet with Clackamas county on September 17 at River Crest farm, owned by the Charles Couches, at Sherwood.

Annual Planning Conference of YM Scheduled

Annual planning conference of Salem YMCA will be next Saturday and Sunday at Camp Silver Creek, General Secretary Gus Moore announced yesterday.

Directors, committees and many interested members and their families are to attend the session, at which committees will evaluate and finally outline their activity programs for the coming year. A program is being arranged for families at the camp.

Attending as an adviser for the planning will be Dwight Welch, Portland, associate northwest area secretary.

Committees which have scheduled sessions during the week end include physical department, headed by Dr. Robert Anderson; boys' work, Alfred W. Louck; membership, Robert O. Smith; public relations, Charles Barclay, young adult, Norman Winslow; building expansion, R. L. Elfstrom.

Knowledge of asbestos was lost after the fall of the Roman Empire and the mineral was not rediscovered until 1868.
