Uecker Expresses Optimism Over German Church Future

A study of church life in Berlin brought "a feeling of hope and optimism" to the Rev. Lloyd Uecker, pastor of Salem's Englewood Evangelical United Brethren church, he reported this week in a letter to The Statesman.

Now in Switzerland on his summer of study and touring in Europe, Uecker spent three-days in Berlin. His report included: "Attendances in the various places of worship far surpasses that of prewar days and the people seem to have an unprecedented desire for Christianity. The majority of the church buildings were completely destroyed during the war, of which only a few have been rebuilt; however worshipping among bombed out ruins or in a reconstructed cellar does not lessen the zeal of Christians to serve God."

"My sleeping quarters were at the home of Wilhelm Meinhardt, pastor of the large Evangelical United Brethren church in downtown Berlin. The Rev. Mr. Meinhardt was forced into the German army in 1942 and was taken prisoner in Russia in 1944. The following four years he spent in a Siberian prison camp. He described these years as a "nightmare." The weather was far below zero, no warm clothing was provided, and the only shoes were those he had carved from wood. Prisoners were not permitted to burn any part of the wood they had cut.

"Meinhardt also serves a mission each Sunday evening in the Russian sector of Berlin. Since Russian officials will not grant him permission to freely enter the east sector, he must weekly risk his freedom by sneaking into the communist sector.

"I had opportunity to speak with Christians who lived deep in the Russian zone, and presently were in west sector Berlin on "official business." They all state that the church continues, but under severe handicaps. I asked what they thought of rumors of the United States' dropping potato bugs on their potato crop. Each time the answer came, "Everyone knows it's a lie, but we dare not say so."

"Berlin is our listening post in Russian territory, telling us that the freedoms of United States are worth defending."
