Couple Wed Friday at Garden Rites

Before a setting of pink and white flowers in the garden of Mr. and Mrs. Brazier Campbell Small at Morningside on Friday night their only daughter, Suzanne, became the bride of Newbury Close, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter L. Close. It was at 7 o'clock that the Rev. George H. Swift performed the nuptials.

Elizabeth Nelson Adams of Portland sang and Ann Gibbens played the wedding music. The garden theme was used throughout in the decor and bouquets of the attendants, with pink, the bride's favorite color, predominating.

Before the bride and groom entered Mary and Carolyn Sewall of Portland, cousins of the bride, held pink ribbons to mark the aisle. They wore pale pink organza dresses.

Miss Patricia Brock was the bride's attendant. She wore a deep pink organza frock with full skirt and stand-up collar. Her hair and full skirt ending in a train. The bodice was finished with a round collar and tied with a pink satin sash and bow in back. Her fingertip veil was of pink illusion and cascaded from an organza cap. She carried an arm bouquet of flowers in pink and white.

On Etiquette

By Roberta Lee

Q. Is it proper to have one's full name marked on one's traveling luggage?

A. Sometimes this is done, but usually most people prefer just the initials. It is not always an advantage to have one's full name displayed so conspicuously when traveling.

Q. Is it obligatory that a bride write a note of thanks to someone who has given her a check as a wedding gift?

A. Yes, certainly.

Q. Is it good form to extend any and all kinds of invitations over the telephone?

A. One may use the telephone for almost any invitation with the exception of formal ones.

Lebanon Firm Low Bidder On School Job

STAYTON, Sept. 1 — A low bid of $59,975 for construction of a new elementary school at Marion was submitted by White and Larson of Lebanon, it was announced here last night.

City to Reopen Housing Units

PORTLAND, Sept. 1 — (AP) — The Portland housing authority has decided to re-open 761 temporary war housing units.

The units were to have been demolished.

Floyd Ratchford, housing director, said the action was necessary because of defeat at the polls of a low-cost housing project and failure of builders to provide sufficient low-cost housing.

Units will be available only to teachers, students under the GI training bill and veterans with an annual income less than $4000.

Hi Ho, Come to the Fair

Year's Big Event Still Gives Thrill To Oldtime Salem Folk; Many Attend

By Maxine Buren
Statesman Woman's Editor

If you are inclined to think that the dear dead days are gone, this is a good week to get over it, at least temporarily.

Though we don't go to the fair anymore by horse and buggy, park in the grove back of the dairy building and sit on the fence and watch the races—the merry-go-round is just the same, the popcorn is as crisp and the agricultural exhibits are still a thrill.

Though prizes are higher and the barns are neater, though the farm machinery isn't what it used to be and nobody in modern times can cook hamburgers like Johnny Jones chicken like Mrs. Olmstead, the cows are as interesting and the children thrill just as much to the baby pigs. And the glass blower is still there, we hope!

Going To The Fair is an old Salem institution, and on Labor Day and Salem Day, even the upper crust of the Capitol's social set lets down its collective hair and has a good time and tired feet.

Popcorn and peanuts, afternoon races, pigs and sheep, needlework and tractors and things attract just about everyone.

Oftimes we regret the passing of the simple life, but fundamentally such things as the fair are about the same. We used to the Old Fred up to an oak tree and sit on the grass at lunch time, then move the buggy over to the race track and have a comfortable box seat for the big events.

One of our most fond recollections is of the wonderful sculpture someone used to do in butter! Might as well be gold now, with butter in the '70s.

Then there was the little panorama of the Willamette valley in the pavilion. (I guess we call it the agricultural building now.) The whole valley was reproduced in miniature; barns, neat fields and Salem and the river. Lights blinked here and there in the tiny farmhouses.

Every time we leave the airport in a plane, we see in our minds eye that panorama. But that was baby stuff, and the fair's more sophisticated.

And, too, we remember the huge bulls, the sleek Jerseys and the draft horses. The bulls are still just as large and the Jerseys as sleek, but there are fewer draft horses.

The Midway was of minimum importance in those days, not only because there are much less of it, but because, with a brood of five, our parents probably kept us as far away as the fairgrounds limits would allow.

But the fair is a lot of fun, take in the county exhibits and put yourself in the mood of thirty years ago. Your feet can get just as tired, your tummy just as full of popcorn and soda pop and your clothes can get as mussed as years ago. The people are still interesting and the air is full of fascinating smells. They are doing some of the same needlework now as they used to, and the man who spells your name in gold wire on a piece of elegant jewelry is still talking himself hoarse.

It's all fun, and we pity the folk who live far away from a fair.
