WASHINGTON, Sept. 20 (AP)—President Truman urged congress today to refrain from passing economic aid to nations which sell war potential articles to iron curtain countries. He said that such a course carries "danger to the United States and to world peace."

The president wrote to Senator McKellar (D-Tenn.) and Rep. Cannon (D-Mo.), chairman of the appropriations committees of the two houses, just ahead of scheduled action by the house on the issue.

There were quick indications that he might make some headway with his plea, but no hints that the whole idea was likely to be thrown out.

At this time the letter was made public key house members were predicting that their branch would accept the senate proposal.

In the late afternoon, however, the decision was put off until tomorrow, with Cannon expressing hope that an acceptable compromise can be worked out in the meantime.

Persons interested in shorthand are asked to register next week so that they may be enrolled for the fall year's course. A special course in gem cutting has been added this year. The course carries no college credit but "is designed to fulfill the need of those asking for courses of a specific type," Porter said.

Searchers Find Lost Tot Asleep

SPOKANE, Sept. 20 (AP)—A search dog, a dozen policemen and friends of the family turned a south side neighborhood upside down today looking for a little girl, not yet two years old.

She had been missing for more than four hours from her home in a wooded residential district near the outskirts of the city.

It all turned out with tears and smiles. The child, 18-month-old Susan Boone, was found in a closet of the house next door. It was vacant. She had been there all the time—sound asleep.

Five motorcycle officers had responded to the first call. They were joined by three squads of prowl car police. Then a German Shepherd dog was brought in. Specially trained in such work, the animal led a search team through nearby woods.

Through the noise, Mrs. Boone heard a faint cry. It was daughter Susan. She had toddled into the vacant house about 1 p.m. and settled down in a closet for her afternoon nap.

After all, she takes one every day about that time.

Pair Claims Knowledge of Oakes Slaying

TORONTO, Sept. 20 (AP)—The question of who killed wealthy Sir Harry Oakes flared anew today.

Two persons claimed to know the story behind the fatal bludgeoning of the Canadian mining magnate seven years ago in the Bahamas.

One was an English-born Toronto woman quoted by the Toronto Star but who declined to divulge her name publicly. The other was Edward Majava, 31-year-old mechanic in Oakland, Calif.

But just whom they pointed the finger at was not disclosed.

Additionally, police took a story from Mrs. Hildegard Hamilton, a portrait artist, in Fort Lauderdale, Fla. She said she told them a story Majava told her two years ago.

Acting Police Superintendent Augustus Roberts, of Nassau, the Bahamas, flew to Oakland after conferring with Mrs. Hamilton.

Roberts conferred with Oakland police today. He was to question Majava later.

The Toronto Star quoted the Toronto woman as saying the actual slayer was a son of a white father and Negro mother, but that he acted only as the hireling of a "powerful" plotter.

She said "it is quite well known that he (the murderer) hired a man to kill Sir Harry. He planned and paid for it and the slayer was merely his tool."
