Henry L. Stimson, Former Cabinet Officer, Dies at 83

HENRY L. STIMSON

Dead at 83

Y., Oct. 20-(A)-Henry L. Stimson, 83, former secretary of state who was called back to service as World War II secretary of war, died today of a heart attack.

He held government positions under six presidents-including cabinet posts under four. A republican, he was secretary of state under President Hoover.

Stimson was taken for a drive in the area around his farm home here this afternoon. He became ill in the car and was driven home. He died shortly after he was taken into the house—about 4 p.m.

His wife, the former Mabel Wellington White, was with him when he died. They were married in 1893 and had no children. Stimson's heart had been bad since shortly after he resigned as

A small Independence boy had a large day in Salem Friday spend-ing $133 police said he took from his mother's purse.

When intercepted by a policeman in the business district about 4 p. m. the 11-year-old had purchased a $70 bicycle, two pair of field glasses, two air rifles and a small arsenal of B-B shot.

He had acquired a following of two Salem boys, aged 5 and 11, whom he treated to an airplane ride at McNary field. Not to men-tion several double-chocolate milk

Lumber Mills Of Price Drop

PORTLAND, Oct. 20-(P)-Small Pacific northwest lumber mills began closing today in the wake of Douglas fir lumber price drop. The price break-not yet much reflected in retail prices-forced four mills to close in western Oregon. One company said it soon would close four of its eight mills

The larger lumber operators appeared confident prices soon would settle, and at a still-profitable level. Small operators admitted however, that the decline would chase many marginal operators

Framing Lumber Hit Some grades of Douglas fir appeared little affected, such as finshing lumber. Framing lumber, however, suffered a drastic drop.
