Power Firms Gross Record High Revenue

Electric power companies in Oregon grossed revenue of $47,514,652 in 1949, a new record, public utilities Commissioner George H. Flagg reported Wednesday.

The total was up 16 per cent from the previous record set in 1948. Their net profit was $9,770,518, a 7 per cent gain over 1948.

Flagg said the average rate during the year was 1.44 cents per kilowatt hour, compared with the national average of 2.95 cents.

The city of McMinnville had the lowest average rate in the state, .97 cents. Eugene was second lowest with 1.14 cents.

The average rates charged by other utilities were: Portland General Electric, 1.29; Pacific Power and Light, 1.45; Athena Light and Power, 1.52; California-Oregon Power Company, 1.6; Idaho Power, 1.7; Mountain States Power, 1.72; City of Ashland, 1.99; and California-Pacific Utilities Co., 2.09.

The power systems of Oregon sold 4,900,000 kilowatt hours of electricity during the year. But they generated only about a third of it themselves, and got almost half of it from the federal government.

The utilities paid out $7,381,877 in taxes, or 17 cents on each dollar of gross revenue.

Portland General Electric Co. was the biggest operator in the state, with gross revenues of $20,-

Salem Men Get New Air Force Blue Uniforms

Three Salem men were among the first air force recruits in the nation to wear the organization's new dress blue uniforms.

The boys are Robert Johnston, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Johnston of 380 Jerris ave.; Stanley Bates, son of Dr. and Mrs. Charles E. Bates of East Center street and Lowell Spagle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lowell A. Spagle of 509 E. 21st st.

The trio went into the air force September 20. The dress blues were worn in a recent parade of 2,000 air force recruits at Sheppard Field air base, Wichita Falls, Texas.

The boys are finishing basic training and are expected to be assigned to technical schools around November 1. Their Sheppard Field base flight, one of 18 training there, won high honors.

Salem Auto Dealers Hold Open House

Automobile dealers of the Salem area are holding informal open-houses these days in observance of National Automobile Dealer week.

Statistics assembled recently by leaders in the group were cited to show that nearly 60 per cent of the nation's families own one or more cars, that jobs connected directly or indirectly with the automobile world run well into the millions, and that progress of the last two or three decades had "veritably made America a nation on wheels."

Increasing recognition of safety campaigns as vital to public welfare, and new safety education in thousands of schools, are being pointed out as healthy signs-of-the-times.

"Actually, the general public is getting more for its money than ever before, in regard to automobiles, and the same goes for farm vehicles," leaders declare.
