

Woman Kidnaped Near Breakdown, Placed in Hospital

ALBUQUERQUE, N.M., Nov. 13-(P)—Described as dangerously near a physical breakdown, Dr. Nancy Campbell was placed in an Albuquerque hospital today.

Investigators found evidence, meanwhile, that the 43-year-old Yale-trained woman physician has been in serious financial difficulties. Asst. Dist. Atty. Robert Fox said "It is apparent she has needed money for some time."

Dr. Campbell was released today under $25,000 bond. She is charged with kidnaping a Santa Fe contractor's nine-year-old daughter.

Fox said Dr. Campbell owed considerable money and had been served a dispossession notice for non-payment of rent on her Santa Fe medical office.

He also revealed she had been "doling out money to a number of individuals. She seems to have been very liberal with her money," he commented. The individuals involved have not yet been questioned.

The respected women's specialist was seized by 30 federal, state and city officers in Santa Fe Saturday night as she picked up a box containing $20,000 in ransom money.

In her car nearby they found the nine-year-old Linda Stamm, who was lured from her home the previous night. She was drugged but otherwise unharmed. She spent Friday night wrapped in blankets in a doorless, windowless, shack in nine-above-zero weather.

Stolen Checks Found
Fox said he is investigating $800 worth of travelers checks found in Dr. Campbell's car which were reported stolen earlier this year from the Santa Fe office of Dr. Eric F. Hausner. Four additional $50 checks were missing.

Dr. Hausner's wife was one of The child's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Allen Stamm, issued a statement today thanking officers for saving Linda.

"We are immensely relieved and thank God that Linda is back home apparently unharmed," the 38-year-old stepfather said.

As she left the jail in Santa Fe, Dr. Campbell was dressed in a gray, two-piece suit in which she frequently appeared when making her rounds as obstetrician and gynecologist. She looked tired and her face was drawn. She spoke in an almost inaudible whisper to Zinn and to her brother, engineer James Campbell of China Lake, Calif.

Her $25,000 bond was signed by four Santa Feans—Dr. Charlotte Jones, close friend; Dr. Herbert Ellis, county medical society head; David Hughes and Walter G. Turley.

Dr. Campbell told FBI agents she needed money, but she was vague on the subject. She had a large practice, much of it for charity.

Chief Agent Percy Wylie II of the FBI said agents had found unpaid bills in a Las Vegas hotel room in which she had stayed recently.

Examination Made
Brain surgeon Leroy Miller of Albuquerque examined Dr. Campbell today, but gave no details. Her Santa Fe attorney, A. L. Zinn, earlier quoted Miller as saying she suffered from "a lesion on the right temple, pressing and affecting the left lobe of the temple."

Zinn said medical attention planned for her "most certainly doesn't include a sanity test."

A Santa Fe physician, Dr. Berge A. Kenney, confirmed today that Dr. Campbell spent three days in the U.S. Indian hospital at Santa Fe after she fainted and fell at her home in mid-August.

He said he found no definite sign of a head injury nor evidence of any brain condition which might have caused her to faint.

Solons Plan Speaking Tour To Back U.N.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 13-(P)—Reps. Judd (R-Minn.) and Hays (D-Ark.) have announced a nationwide speaking tour beginning November 28 in behalf of the United Nations "and a bi-partisan effort to strengthen it."

They will speak together from the same platform in a number of cities, including Seattle, San Francisco, Dallas, Pittsburgh, Cleveland and Chicago.

The two congressmen said they hoped to build public understanding and support for the principle "of world law to prevent war, and at the same time to demonstrate the continued strength of non-partisanship on fundamental foreign policy."

Judd and Hays said in their joint announcement that, while they have often differed on many administration policies, they stand together in believing a strong world organization, with power to make and enforce world law against aggression, is necessary to achieve peace.

EGG PRICES ADVANCE

CHICAGO, Nov. 13-(P)—Traders in egg futures shoved prices on the November contract up the daily permissible limit of two cents a dozen on the mercantile exchange today. The price of 41 1/2 cents a dozen was the highest of the season for storage eggs.

the government might exchange some of its hard wheat for soft red wheat. The latter variety has acted as a drag on the market. If it could be loaded on the government, presumably the market would be strengthened, grain men reasoned.

Oregon Legislators Represent Wide Cross-Section of Vocations

By Paul W. Harvey, Jr. Associated Press Correspondent

The new Oregon legislature, which meets here January 8, will be long on experience and will be a pretty fair cross section of the people.

Of the 30 senators, only one will be without previous legislative experience. Twenty-four have served in the senate and five have been state representatives.

The house will have 34 experienced men, including 32 who were in the 1949 session, and two who didn't serve then but had prior service. There will be 28 new men, which is about normal in these days of long 97-day sessions, which make men decide they can't take much of that.

There will be one woman in each house. The senator is Mrs. Marie Wilcox, Grants Pass republican who has served one session in each house. The representative is Mrs. Maurine Neuberger, Portland democrat, a newcomer and the wife of State Sen. Richard L. Neuberger.

In the new senate there will be seven lawyers, seven businessmen, six farmers, two labor leaders and two weekly newspaper publishers. And there will be one each of these professions: housewife, writer, radio station manager, drug retailers association secretary, tax accountant, and laborer.

There will be 16 lawyers in the house, which is a good thing. In the past, the house has been so short of lawyers that it didn't have enough of them to serve on the two house law committees.

The house will have 15 businessmen, nine farmers, five insurance men, two laborers, two engineers, and two real estate men. There will be one each of these callings: labor leader, physician, housewife, teacher, policeman, weekly newspaper publisher, fraternity representative and optometrist. One member is retired.

The dean of the new senate will be Sen. Dean H. Walker, Independence republican, who has served in eight legislatures.

Rep. Harvey Wells, Portland republican, is dean of the house with 11 sessions. Next are Reps. Herman H. Chindgren, Molalla republican, and Henry Semon, Klamath Falls democrat, each with nine sessions of experience.

Dredge Tips Over, Sinks

ASTORIA, Ore., Nov. 13-(P)—The 80-foot dredge Tidepoint tipped over and sank here today, dumping two sleeping crewmen into the water.

Ivan J. Ebne, West Linn, and Orr R. Combs, Svensen, swam to safety but were under treatment for shock and exposure. The $35,000 dredge, owned by

Steady Stream Of Sales Keep Stocks Rising

NEW YORK, Nov. 13-(P)—A steady stream of buying orders that rarely speeded up or slackened kept stock prices aimed a trifle higher today.

It was one of the most even-tempered sessions in weeks. Fluctuations of more than a few cents were uncommon.

Occasionally an issue would show an advance of a dollar or more a share, but a great majority of stocks posted only fractional changes—and small ones, at that.

Strictly speaking, the day's work represented an extension of the post-election rally that got underway last week immediately after returns showed gains for republican candidates. There was slight resemblance, however, between the aggressive tactics of last week's buyers and the choosy, calculating methods on display today.

Trading volume of 1,630,000 shares made it the lightest day since Nov. 3.

The Associated Press average of 80 stocks gained the minimum of 10 cents at $83.70 a share, compared with a 70-cent rise Friday.

Gains were scored for 582 stocks of the 1,127 that were traded. Only 297 lost ground. Sixty-nine issues hit new 1950 highs, while a single stock dropped to its 1950 bottom.
