More for Your Money

Combination of Oil, Coal, Gas in Dual Ranges Important Appliance in Home

By Sue Gardner
The combination range in which gas is used for cooking, and oil, coal or gas used for heating the kitchen and the part of the house near the kitchen, has become an important appliance in many homes. In small rural or suburban homes where there is no central heating, the range is the main heating unit for the room in which the family gathers during the evening. If the room has a dinette, or large opening to a living room, some of the heat spills over into the other sections and provides enough heat in a fair sized area.
The ranges are also used in some homes where the owners feel the need of some heat in fall or spring on days when they do not want to heat the whole house through a central furnace. Much of the cooking can be done in one of the dual ovens heated by the fuel side, as well as on top of this part of the stove. More exact cooking and baking is usually done on the gas side in which the heat can be carefully controlled.
Originally the combination ranges were used in tenements where cold water flats required some special heating not connected to a central system. Owners found it was less expensive to have the tenants provide their own heat, which was not used when they were away from home, than to provide central heating. However, the stoves have also become popular in country homes, where heat is needed only over occasional weekends, and installing a stove of this kind is less of an investment than a complete heating system.

On Etiquette

By Roberta Lee

Q. Must every first call be returned by a woman who has recently moved into a new neighborhood, whether she likes some particular person or not?
A. Yes; all first calls should be returned within two weeks. Of course, it is not necessary to form a friendship that seems undesirable.
Q. When there is to be a double-ring marriage ceremony, which ring is presented first?
A. The bridegroom puts his ring on the bride's finger first, after which the bride presents the bridegroom with her ring.
Q. How should the fruit seed, or a small piece of bone, be taken from the mouth while at the dinner table?
A. Between the thumb and forefinger. Never try to do this by pushing it out into the spoon.

The Wednesday afternoon AAUW literature group will be held at the North Summer street home of Mrs. J. E. West and Miss Kate Dickson. Mrs. Nora Thompson will be the assisting hostess. Mrs. Wilbur Ankeny will give the book review.

PGE IS A WESTERN COMPANY

85% of PGE's stockholders live in the 3 Pacific Coast States

Yes, most of the people who own PGE are westerners. They are people in all walks of life, in most every income level. They are the elderly couple down the street, the girl who works in the drugstore, the mechanic in your neighborhood garage . . . just average people who have a genuine interest in the West and have invested savings in PGE because they believe this region will continue to prosper and grow.

Altogether more than 15,000 people own PGE stock. More than a third of these live in Oregon. More than 85% of them live in the 3 Pacific Coast States and hold 70% of the total shares. The remaining stockholders are scattered in every state and several foreign countries. No one individual or group owns as much as a 3% interest in PGE.

Yes, PGE is owned in the West, is managed and operated by Oregon people. Because of this, PGE has the personal and genuine interest of a fellow citizen who wants to make electric service in this area the finest in the world.
