Leo Carrillo Troupe Due Wednesday

Salem merchants are putting out their best welcome mat for Leo Carrillo and his western entertainers who are coming here Wednesday for a free performance on downtown State street.

A citywide bargain day is being planned by the Salem Retail Trade bureau, according to President Richard L. Cooley whose board of directors is planning a street parade to greet the famed caballero and his "Dude Ranch Varieties" troupe.

The mid-morning entertainment is to be given in front of the Pay-Less drug store which is sponsoring the Carrillo troupe's local appearance with the aid of Salem Optimist club.

Although Carrillo's just-starting western tour is by chartered plane and escorted motor caravan, the genial westerner himself is expected to appear in the Salem parade in a more familiar pose, on horseback.

When the merchants asked the mounted posse and other riders to appear in the parade, they learned that Carrillo is a friend of Lee Eyerly, Salem posse leader and other possemen and Saddle club members of Salem. Eyerly said since he has ridden with Carrillo in California on several occasions, he hopes to return the compliment by having a horse available for Affable Leo when he arrives here.

The Carrillo troupe is to be met by special escort in north Salem Wednesday morning, in time for the troupe to pay a call on the governor at the statehouse about 10 a.m. Following this, the parade will take the entertainers from the statehouse through the downtown area.

The movie and television entertainers will include, besides Carrillo, Andy Parker and the Plainsmen, the whip and rope act of Buck Eddy and Chickie, dancer Marilyn Epperson, actress and vocalist Jane Frazee, comic Bob Sheppard and western ballad singer Les (Carrot Top) Anderson. National sponsors of the Carrillo tour are the makers of two
