

9 Americans Nominated for Nobel Awards

By Einar Berggren
OSLO, Norway, Feb. 23-(AP)—Nine Americans are among 28 world figures nominated today by the Norwegian Nobel institute for the 1951 Nobel peace prize.

The Nobel committee will announce the winner in September and make the award Dec. 10. Its estimated cash value is 150,000 Norwegian kroner (about $21,000).

The American nominees: U. S. Supreme Court Justice Robert H. Jackson, who as chief U. S. prosecutor at the Nuernberg war crimes trial was credited with establishing the principle it is a punishable crime to plan or conduct aggressive warfare.

Dr. Robert M. Hutchins, associate director of the Ford Foundation and president of the Committee to frame a world constitution (CFWC), a group promoting a world government.

Frank Buchman, Pennsylvania-born founder of the International Moral Re-education movement, which is described as calling for absolute honesty, unselfishness, purity and love in international affairs.

H. C. Honegger, New York philanthropist who founded the Pestalozzi Foundation, a charitable organization which concentrates on child relief in the United States and other countries.

Raphael Lemkin of Yale, lawyer veteran of the Polish fight to save Warsaw from the Nazis who coined the word "genocide" for race murder and scored a personal triumph in the United Nations in 1948 when it adopted a convention outlawing genocide.

Manley O. Hudson, international lawyer who has been identified with world peace groups since 1912.

Charles Cheney Hyde, professor of international law and diplomacy at Columbia university from 1925 to 1945 and now professor emeritus, who has lectured for the Carnegie endowment for international peace.

Ewing Cockrell, Washington lawyer and author of "Declaration of Ten Fundamental Peace Policies" in 1944.

Allen Dobson, Nashville, Tenn., businessman who, seeking to promote better European understanding of the United States, organized a seven-week American tour for 22 young Europeans last year.

The most widely known among the other nominees for the award—set up under the will of the late Alfred Nobel, the inventor of dynamite—are U. N. Secretary-General Trygve Lie, Prime Minister Nehru of India, Attorney General Sir Hartley Shawcross of Britain and Leon Jouhaux, anti-communist French labor leader.

An oil portrait of Chief Pontiac, famous Indian leader after whom Pontiac, Mich., and the Pontiac car were named, was presented to the Herrall-Owens firm by the Pontiac division of General Motors recently as a "Better Dealer" award for outstanding service, personnel and facilities. Above (left to right) are B. E. (Kelly) Owens, vice president of the Herrall-Owens company; Robert Herrall, president, and Gov. Douglas McKay who congratulated the firm in a brief talk. The presentation was at a luncheon attended by more than a score of city and state officials.

Stassen Backs Troop Policy For Europe

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23-(AP)—Harold E. Stassen today solidly backed the administration's troops-for-Europe policy and called for a mighty U. S. air fleet capable of smashing Russia's war potential.

Agreeing partly with both sides in the "great debate" over helping western Europe, Stassen:

1. Strongly opposed President Truman's claimed authority to send American troops overseas without congressional restrictions.

2. Advocated air power as of paramount importance in a five-point program which he said could lead to "victory without war."

Testifying before a crowded senate hearing, Stassen spoke as a lead-off man among the republicans engaged in the troops-for-Europe controversy.

Stassen, who aspired to the GOP nomination in 1948, threw his support behind the Taft-Wherry-Hoover school of thought to the extent of urging a great buildup of American air power.

The Truman program calls for an air power buildup, but some members of congress and others contend not enough emphasis is being put on that aspect of defense.

Stassen championed the policy of the Truman administration in sending troop reinforcements to Europe, declaring:

"The program so ably presented by Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower for rearming western Europe, including the use of American arms Stassen, (should) be given solid support."

"If America showed timidity and shortsightedness in refusing to back up Gen. Eisenhower, I believe the reaction right inside America would seriously undermine the stability and confidence in our own economy which is essentially for all purposes."

As for congress tying the president's hands on troop movements, Stassen said:

"The decisions by congress should not be substituted for decision by the executive branch (the White House) in matters which are executive in their nature."

"The deployment of the armed forces of the country is distinctly an executive matter."

Stassen maintained that the president can send troops to any friendly country without asking congress' permission.

Senator Hickenlooper (R-Iowa) wanted to know what would happen if the president decided to send 3,500,000 men in the armed forces abroad, assigning the navy and air force to Europe also.

"He has the power to do so and I assume he would be impeached the next day," Stassen replied.

Price Index Holds After Steady Rise

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23-(AP)—The government's wholesale price index remained unchanged in the week ended Feb. 20, after 18 consecutive weeks of advancement.

Fourteen of those 18 weeks had each registered a new high over previously established peaks, the bureau of labor statistics noted in reporting today on the latest figures.

In the week ended Feb. 20, the index for all commodities stood at 183.4 per cent of the 1926 average, 1.9 percent over Jan. 23, 1951 and 16.9 percent above the May 24-June 24, 1950 level.

$120 Payments To Nursing Homes Okehed

PORTLAND, Feb. 23-(AP)—The state public welfare commission today voted to allow payments up to $120 monthly for welfare patients in nursing homes.

Administrator Loa Howard said the action was necessary because nursing home operators were threatening to close unless increases were allowed. She said it was the first increase since 1948.

Some counties already are allowing as much as $125, she said. Multnomah county has allowed $59.

The commission also voted to allow boarding homes to charge $65 for housing welfare patients. Public assistance cost $2,258,407 in January, compared with $2,230,519 the same month a year ago, the commission reported.

Milder weather last month was credited with keeping costs down.

Pastor Serves as Bartender for 'Cocktail' Session

GRAND ISLAND, Neb., Feb. 23-(AP)—Members of a Grand Island service club were surprised recently when they showed up for a pre-announced cocktail party preceding a dinner and initiation.

Instead of a bartender, they found Dr. Frank Feyton, First Congregational church pastor, passing out tall feathers of cock pheasants.

Objections to a cocktail party were voiced shortly before the party was to have begun and the change in plans resulted.

Truman Plans Summer White House Visit

WASHINGTON, Feb. 23-(AP)—President Truman decided today to get away from some of the White House routine and take his first extended rest since the outbreak of the Korean war last June.

He will fly to the Key west, Fla., submarine base, his favorite spot for relaxing, next Friday to stay at least 23 days. It will be the first visit to the "summer White House" in a year.

He will return to Washington in late March in time for the Latin-American foreign ministers conference and the visit of President Auriol of France.
