

Danish Youth Visits Valley for Farm Study

Renumbering Of South Salem Homes Finished

Renumbering of approximately 150 houses in south Salem has been completed by the city engineer's department, to correct addresses jumbled in new sections of the city.

John Beebe, inspector who handled the task, said all addresses out of line south of Hoyt street and west of Commercial street were corrected, as well as some on South Summer street and along an alley known as Shelton street.

The southwest section involved making Commercial street the zero point south of Hoyt, since the normal dividing line of the street does not reach the area. The area east of Commercial was not disturbed by the change. Cancellations heights and Hansen additions were those principally affected. Houses on Shelton were on the backs of lots facing Lee as Hyde street had been assigned numbers there previously.

C of C Officials, Industrialists to Meet with McKay

Salem Chamber of Commerce will be represented Friday in a conference of industrialists and chamber officials with Gov. Douglas McKay, in the interests of obtaining defense production contracts for Oregon.

The governor called the meeting to determine what action might be taken to expedite the matter.

Salem chamber already has organized a Marion county program under which two groups of industrialists and small shopmen have joined forces to go out after defense business. These are the metalwork plants and the woodwork plants. The latter group will meet tonight at the Senator hotel.

Hop Marketing Hearing Ends

PORTLAND, March 21 — (AP) — A hearing on proposed changes in hop marketing rules ended today after three days of testimony by growers and market specialists.

Testimony in the closing day was mostly on minor issues among the 15 proposed amendments to the hop marketing agreement. In the previous two days there had been testimony on two controversial issues: Whether to give the hop control board more control over surplus hops, and whether to change the growers' privilege of diverting surplus hops.

Will Rogers, San Francisco, hearing examiner for the department of agriculture, set April 23 as the deadline for filing briefs on the proposed amendments. Later, agriculture officials in Washington, D. C., will make recommendations, which will go to a vote of growers.

Oregon Dairy Record Broken

CORVALLIS, March 21 — (AP) — Cows registered with Oregon's Dairy Herd Improvement association showed an all-time high in average milk and butterfat production for 1950.

Production last year averaged 8,108 pounds of milk including 380 pounds of butterfat for the 17,237 cows in 19 counties where DHIA work is under way.

That compared with the 1949 average of 7,843 pounds of milk and 367 pounds of butterfat for 1949.

Frank A. Turner, ADA, won high individual herd honors. His Jerseys produced 812 pounds of butterfat in an average 18,973 pounds of milk.
