

Mac Must Draw Line Between Politics, Psychological War

TOKYO, March 30 (AP)—General MacArthur apparently is going to draw a line hereafter between psychological warfare and statements which might be construed as political.

The word reached MacArthur's headquarters today that President Truman has instructed the general to "clear" with Washington all statements bearing on political matters.

This evidently was the repercussion from MacArthur's statement to the Chinese communists last Saturday that they should give serious thought to peace talks.

Military men here call this statement "a cold estimate of a military situation"—not political. Among other things, the general observed that Red China would face military collapse if the United Nations should decide to attack its coastal areas and military bases.

That seems to have been the most controversial part of the statement. Informed sources said this was part of the psychological warfare that has been going on all along in the Korean war.

The statement was broadcast to Chinese armies in the field and dropped in leaflets over enemy territory. These sources said its aim was to outline communist military weaknesses to the enemy soldier. MacArthur decided some time ago to issue the statement at what he considered the psychological moment.

Washington's reaction caused surprise and considerable concern among officers here. They said this reaction might allay any fears which the statement might have raised in Beijing.

"Now," said one officer, who declined use of his name, "we've made it clear there is not the slightest idea of carrying the war to where it could hurt them."

On the other hand, Washington was concerned about the effect the statement might have on the other allies now fighting alongside the United States in Korea.

Some of these allies want to avoid anything that might cause the war to spread in the Orient.

There has been no official announcement as yet from Washington and sources here say direct orders have not been given directing MacArthur to clear political matter hereafter.

MacArthur himself remained silent. Shock and surprise were manifest in the local reaction to the thought of placing MacArthur under political censorship.

Thus far there has been no communist reaction to MacArthur's effort to convince them a negotiated peace is their best "out" in Korea.

The plant is located on the former Albany college campus.

Millikin Ace Scoring Leader

NEW YORK, March 30 (AP)—Scotty Steagall of Millikin university who has been near the top in scoring all season, is the No. 1 point maker in small college basketball for 1951.

The National Collegiate Athletic Service bureau announced today that Steagall's 888 points in 31 games easily gave him the scoring with an average of 28.6 per game. This compared with 26.8 points per game registered by the runnerup, Al Murawski of Lebanon Valley.

Other individual honors went to Tommy Smith of St. Peter's, Norm Patberg of Eastern Illinois, Walter Lenz of Franklin & Marshall, and Ed Ware of Northern Illinois.

Smith had a 56.1 field goal average to edge out John O'Brien's 55.8 per cent for Seattle university, and Jack Nichols' 55.3 per cent for the Quantico Marines. Nichols is a former University of Washington star.

Roaming Lioness Adds 'Movie' Note to Filmland Birthday Party

DUTCH DESIGN—Blue satin evening dress by Dutch couturier Herbert Sildon has star-spangled mesh with 2-ended bow. Stars are studded with pearls and diamonds.

PALM SPRINGS, Calif., March 30 (AP)—A fun-loving lioness, springing gracefully over parked cars . . . an elephant boy hero . . .

Movie stars . . . a police riot squad . . . an elephant boy hero . . . Put them all together and you have Stewart Hopps' birthday for his wife — "it really was a dilly," he said.

The lion, named Martha, got loose early today, at the height of a circus — costume ball at a ranch on the edge of this resort town. She headed for the desert, sailing over parked cars in moonlight. But then hunger won out, and she doubled back for the kitchen.

There were three guests, Allan Jones, the singer, Renaldo Ferrarri, San Francisco nightclub operator, and Earl Theisen, magazine photographer, cornered her until police and her trainer could take over.

"It was a three-ring circus," Hopps said afterwards. "It had everything you'd expect to find in a movie script."

Three-Ring Circus Hopps, chairman of the U. S. Marine & Foreign Securities Corp. in New York, pitched a big circus tent for the party. One ring was used for dancing, another for the buffet, the third for the animal acts. The latter included five lions, an elephant and a chimpanzee.

"Just as the trainer was leaving the cage after his act, the lioness slipped out behind him and headed for the desert," Hopps related. "I'm not sure she was mad about anything. I think the darned thing was just having fun."

Leaps Casually "If you've never seen a lion hopping over a car you've missed something. She was very casual about it. She just walked up to a car and over she went."

To preserve order in the tent, Hopps said, it was announced that the whole thing was just a gag. "But then the lioness stuck her nose inside, and everybody went wild."

Her cavorting apparently gave her an appetite, and she found the kitchen, where she was cornered by Jones, Ferrarri and Theisen, armed with chairs and prods. Trainer Takes Over Police had been summoned meanwhile. They covered with riot guns until the trainer took over.

In the tent the hero was Rudolf Hernandez, an elephant boy. He moved his elephant to the entrance as a guard.

"Hernandez thought very fast," said Hopps. "He said one of his beasts could whip any two lions in the world. He kept the people inside the tent and the lion outside."

John Ringling North, jr., of the circus family, one of 200 costumed guests, offered Hernandez a job on the spot.

Among other celebrities attending were Sonja Henie, William Powell, and Directors Merrill LeRoy and Harry Joe Brown.

Before the party, Hopps said, aides recommended that he buy insurance, because of the animals. He did, telephoning an agency in San Francisco.

"The bill was $100 for the one night," he said. "I sent 'em a nasty telegram, complaining about the premium."

"Today I wrote the company a letter of apology."

Costello Heads List of Crime Probe Charges

WASHINGTON, March 30 (AP)—The senate topped off the sensational packed hearings of its crime committee by voting contempt citations against 12 bulky witnesses head by Frank Costello, reputed New York gambling kingpin.

At the same time Senator Wiley (R-Wis.) announced he and Senator Tobey (R-N.H.) will introduce a resolution within a week to extend the life of the committee until next January 15.

Sen. Kefauver (D-Tenn.) crime committee chairman, asked the senate to cite Jacob (Greasy Thumb) Guzik, reputed former treasurer for the Chicago Al Capone gang. The senate voted unanimously for that and then Kefauver sent over the other 11 names, including Costello.

His list, besides Costello, included Frank Erickson, Joe Adonis, Morris Kleinman, and Louis Rothkopf.

Then there was William G. O'Brien, Florida gambler, John Doyle of Gary, Ind., Ralph J. O'Hara, George S. Bowers, John Croft, and Stanley Cohen, identified by the committee as a San Francisco race wire figure.

Beau Jack Gets Win Over Willis

NEW ORLEANS, March 30 (AP)—Beau Jack, one-time world's lightweight champion and a big boxing gate attraction, used his neck-stretching bolo punch to win a unanimous decision over LeRoy Willis of Detroit, Mich., here tonight.

But the 10-rounder showed Willis to advantage, too. He weathered some of the bolo blows — a sweeping arched uppercut punch — and hit Jack with artillery of his own. Willis weighed in at 135.
