Like many things under the sun, ash flooring is not altogeher new, but it is not what you would call common. And it makes a beautiful, unique and very hard floer, say the folk who have recently viewed that laid down by Bud Jackson in his new Woodburn home. Bud used ash in the living ing on as a good stand. area and maple in one bedroom. The light portion of ash flooring is somewhat darker than maple and with beautiful dark brown burls

Bud says that the floor finishers thought it the most beautiful floor they had ever laid. "The wood was so hard," Bud reports, "that we had to bore holes

for all of the nails." The trees were grown on his farm and he cut them two years ago. A nearby mill sawed the flooring green. He brought these green boards home and piled them for drying under a shed. They were planed immediately prior to placing them in the house.

Bud says he got the idea of using ash flooring from Lorin Wrolstad, Yoder. Lorin used ash to floor a portion of his new home.
