Santiam Water Control District Hearing June 18

First public hearing on a proposed Santiam water control district, comprising 37,000 acres in south Marion county, was set Saturday by the county court for Monday, June 18, at 10 a.m.

The district would involve work for improved irrigation, drainage and flood control in the area generally between Marion and Stayton and north to around Aumsville, used largely for bean growing.

Petitions for the district were filed by approximately 150 owners of 8,093 acres of land in the area. At the first hearing the court is to hear arguments on the proposal, fix boundaries if it approves the district and set a final hearing from 30 to 50 days later. Unless owners of 20 per cent of the property file requests for an election on the issue, the district would be declared created at the final hearing. Election of nine directors would follow.

NW Meeting Of Musicians Opens Today

Northwest conference of the American Federation of Musicians will be in Salem beginning today for its first meeting in this city.

About 100 delegates are expected from 57 locals in Oregon, Washington, Idaho and British Columbia.

Arrangements are in charge of Maurice Brennen, president of Salem local. Heading the business will be Harry Reed, Seattle, northwest president, and Herman Kenin, Portland, northwest representative from the international union.

Today's program will include tours of the city and attendance at the Willamette university band's spring concert, directed by Brennen. On Monday there will be business sessions, a tea for wives of delegates, an evening banquet and party. Sessions will close Tuesday morning with election of officers.

Not Every "Rainy" Day Is Wet!

Every wise farmer LOOKS AHEAD! He prepares for that proverbial "rainy" day by saving his money. But, by golly, not even money can always buy what you want or need. Supposing you decide . . . in six months or so, say . . . that you want a new steel spray-tank to replace that old wooden one! Yes, and you have the money to pay for it! Will you get it? Not necessarily! After all, if world conditions make any greater demand on America's steel output . . . chances are there won't be any to be had for love or money! That's right . . . delay NOW in getting your DO rating for steel might prove costly in time and crop-money later on! Why risk it! See W. W. ROSEBRAUGH COMPANY and let the friendly staff there get you lined-up on a DO rating. You see, a DO rating sort of puts you on equal footing with other businesses in getting the steel you may need. So, whether it be a new steel spray-tank, perhaps improvements to your hop-dryer . . . or any changes or repairs to your farm machinery and equipment . . . get your DO rating as soon as possible. Naturally, W. W. ROSEBRAUGH COMPANY will build that spray-tank for you . . . or do any of your steel fabricating needs with all the skill and experience gained in 38 years of service to farmers of the Willamette Valley. Why not talk about that spray-tank tomorrow! Stop out at the plant . . . or just call 3-6709.

Liberty Garden Plot Underway At Bush Pasture

By Lillie L. Madsen
Garden Editor, The Statesman
Members of the Men's Garden club of Salem aren't going to be at a loss in what to do with their weekends for the next few weeks. When they are not working in their own gardens they'll be found at the Liberty Garden demonstration plot in Bush's pasture.

This, believed to be the first of its kind in the nation, got officially underway Saturday morning when 15 members of the Men's Garden club turned out to watch Governor Douglas McKay, Mayor Alfred M. Loucks and James Moyner, Salem park superintendent, formally dedicate the plot to Liberty Garden furtherance.

The garden plot lies on the south side of Bush's Pasture just beyond the newly grassed division which is being used as a picnic area for small groups.

Tilling, Fertilizing
Plans call for demonstrations each Saturday with the tilling and fertilizing of the soil. The garden was also measured into six small plots which will be separated by pathways so that those interested may wander into the garden to see at close hand what is actually going on.

Next Saturday seeding will begin. Easily grown vegetables that are suitable for any home garden will be featured in 15 foot rows. First crops to go will be lettuce in both leaf and head varieties, kahl rabi, kale, carrots, parsnips, onions in both sets and seeds, beets swiss chard and cabbage plants.

Proper spraying, dusting, cultivation and irrigation will be practiced throughout the summer.

Liberty Garden Program
The national Liberty Garden program was instigated several weeks ago by the Men's Garden Clubs of America, of which Mark Taylor, Salem, is secretary. The program has been approved by the federal department of agriculture and will be developed by the Men's Garden clubs.

The Salem portion of the program is being engineered under the directors of the Salem Men's Garden club, including Ned Linden, president, Abe Regier, vice president; Charles Pickett, secretary; Bill Eng, treasurer, and George Candeaux, Lee Canfield, Ray Warren, P. H. Brydon, Geor-

Third Base Club to Start Rooting Friday

Salem's Third Base club will have its first chance to root for the home team Friday night.

More than 500 youngsters have picked up free membership cards, and city police Saturday urged other area youths aged 8 through 15 to hustle down to the police station and sign up.

Membership cards are a free ticket to watch the Salem Senators play baseball when they are at home on Friday nights. Wednesday nights will be added, too, after school pauses for summer vacation.

Third-basers will sit together in the left-field bleachers and will be supervised nightly by a police matron, juvenile officer and uniformed police officer, according to police.

"We want to encourage parents to come out to the ball game, leave their children at the Third-Base gate, and rest assured that they will be under proper supervision," said Juvenile Officer Kenneth Seilpp. Parents do not have to accompany children to the ball park, however.

The Third Base club, inaugurated last year, is sponsored by the Salem Senators and the city police department.
