Don't Look Now...

but... we have sacrificed our vegetable garden to the baseball fans. Rain, a natural phenomenon is always brought on by having our car washed. But we warn you, the car will be washed now, and we hope the heavens will open, get the soil into planting shape and of course, splash the car with mud again. Sight see... Every little boy in Salem should have by now been taken by his father to the Willamette river bridge to see the interesting business of washing gravel from the bottom of the Willamette and piled high for the new approach.

Oh well... writing a story on colored food picture in a magazine this week, we called it Time Instead of Life. Oh well, Life, Death, Time, Tide, Fortune, they all look alike to us except True Story, of course that's so educational. Well packaged... If you see some ladies sitting at night baseball games with their feet in paper sacks, it's because they found out you can get very snug inside one. Honest, just take two nice big paper sacks to the game and stick your toesies into them and you won't congeal with cold. Now it's not "snug as a bug in a rug," it is "snug as a hazy in a bag."
