997 Dairies Hold Grade A Licenses

A total of 997 dairymen and 125 distributors held grade A state milk licenses on May 1, it was reported Friday by Kenneth E. Carl, assistant chief of the foods and dairies division of the state agricultural department. Carl this week completed a summary of the grade A milk inspections during 1950, which shows the state inspection work well ahead of the requirements laid down by the state grade A fluid milk regulations, which demand at least one inspection per dairy farm and milk plant every six months.

The state record for the last calendar year shows 3519 farm inspections or an average of 3.6 inspections per dairy farm. In distributing plants, 494 inspections were made or just a shade under four inspections per distributor last year.

The department bacteriological laboratory analyzed 11,521 grade A milk samples in 1950. This also is well ahead of the state requirement of at least four samples each six months or eight per year from each dairy farm or milk plant. Carl said 20 grade A producers were degraded in 1950 for violation of sanitation requirements, 62 for violation of bacterial standards, and 37 for violation of sediment standards. Also degraded were 11 distributors for milk bacterial standing violations and 10 distributors for violation of cream bacterial standards.

SAILING DATES LISTED

WASHINGTON, May 18 (AP)—The second armored division will sail for Europe in late June and early July, the army announced here.

Veteran of 'Police Action' Ponders Ways of Wars, Enjoys Salem Leave

By Don Dill
Staff Writer, The Statesman

After two battling trips up and down Korea, M. Sgt. Wilfred R. McKay is back home in Salem. Arriving in San Francisco Tuesday aboard the UNSS Lt. Raymond Boudoin, McKay flew into Salem to be met by his wife and two children, Judith, 4½; and Dennis, 7 years.

Thursday, while relaxing a bit at his home at 639 N. Liberty st., McKay looked forward to his 30-day leave. But the prospect of leisure time ahead doesn't cause McKay to forget his experiences in a war called a "police action."

Veterans of 15 years service in the army, during which he fought in Europe after the Normandy landings, McKay remembers the Korean fight as a dirty, smelly mess in a country which he can't see "any reason for anybody wanting." This is reflected in his observance of the Korean peoples and themselves who have no thought for the future, but just the immediate need for food, clothing and shelter.

On Inchon Landing
McKay's first contact with Korea came Sept. 17, 1950, when the 7th division made the Inchon landings before pushing on to Seoul. After that came the bloody, tiring retreat down the peninsula to Pusan. After regrouping, the 7th was loaded aboard ships and sailed along the upper coast of Korea to Iwon above the 40th parallel where another amphibious landing was made. McKay's third in 6½ years of overseas duty.

From Iwon the UN forces pushed to the Yalu river separating Korea from Manchuria.

Here at Hyesanjin McKay's outfit was the farthest north of any other and could see the fortified emplacements of the Chinese across the Yalu. Then came the Chinese communists' entry into the war last December and the 7th division retreated with the other UN forces, giving much more than they took.

Through the reverses and another long trek down the peninsula to Hungnam, McKay kept a wooden washbowl he had picked up along the Yalu river banks as a souvenir. He still has it.

Receives Rotation Orders
At Hungnam the beleaguered troops were taken by ship to Pusan. From there they began the advance which carried them to Chunchon, near the 38th parallel, where on April 23 McKay received his rotation orders.

McKay, in thinking about the Korean war observed that the first wave of Chinese troops were probably the cream of the communist armies; that they were not equal in training or equipment to the UN forces, but sheer weight of numbers kept their drive rolling forward.

Now the Chinese troops are made up of barely trained soldiers, many of them youths of 13 or 14 years, or North Koreans pressed into service, and none seem to have any "cause" in the war, McKay believes.

During the first successful onslaught of the Chinese communist troops in December, there was much evidence that the troops had been drugged, according to McKay. This war has developed into an artillery man's war, McKay, an ordnance man, states. The big guns, 165 mm and 155 mm, are lined up behind the front line troops in long rows and four hundred shells a day into the enemy, causing great slaughter.

The air force also comes into praise by McKay. The fighters and fighter-bombers strafe the enemy within 200 or 300 yards of the front troops, giving a cooperation and coordination unseen during the European fighting, the master sergeant states.

Feel Home Front Let Downs
To the troops in Korea it seems that the people back in the United States aren't really backing them up, McKay indicated, as the servicemen feel that there is too much "business as usual," and that the home folks won't understand war until the mainland is actually hit.

But morale of the fighting men is good, McKay pointed out, and especially so since the rotation system began. The troops agree with MacArthur about bombing Chinese bases, but that is as far as they will commit themselves.

Summing up, McKay says that there is far better understanding of what the fight is about among the troops than there was during the last war. The service men feel that Korea is another outpost of democracy, and that if the line is not held there, soon communism would be sweeping Japan, the Philippines, then on into America itself.

Albany Visitor Dies After Fall Down Stairs

ALBANY, May 18—A fall down basement steps proved fatal today to Mrs. Irene Flemming, 40, Corvallis, former Albany beauty operator who was visiting here.

Deputy Coroner Walter Kropp said Mrs. Flemming plunged headlong down the flight of steps after opening the basement door which she thought led to another room. Kropp said the accident happened at the home of Mrs. May Hayes.

Mrs. Flemming died at a hospital here early today, about four hours after the accident. An autopsy showed a basal skull fracture was the cause.

The woman operated the Modern Beauty shop here for two years before moving away in 1948. Surviving are the widower, Gordon Flemming, Molalla; three children, Virginia of Albany, Glenn of Harrisburg, and Don, with the air force; also her father, Gus Schmitt, Corvallis.

Services will be held at 10:30 a.m. Tuesday at the Fisher mortuary here. Interment will be at Willamette Memorial park.

County Road Oiling Plans Announced

Marion county crews this summer will oil 20.36 miles of road and patch other surfaces which deteriorated during the winter months, the county court announced Friday.

Court members said winter damage to county highways was the least in several years because of the absence of sub-zero weather.

The oiling program will get underway in June when a primer coat will be spread, but the oil matting will not be applied until after July 4.

Roads to be oiled and the mileage include:

- Quinn, 1 mile; Nibler, 2; McKee road, north, .75; Shafter Hill, 2; Ray Jones, 1; Clear Lake, 1.50; Nusom, 2; Ritchie, 1; Rocky, Four Corners, 1; Sunset avenue, .50; Hollywood drive, .50; Elma and Mahrt avenues, .50; Oakdale, .50; Sidney, 2.6; St. Louis-Woodburn, 1.5, and Victor Point, 2.

Oppenheimer Mentioned For Judgeship

Speculation around the statehouse Friday indicated that Eugene Oppenheimer, Portland attorney, probably will be offered the newly created circuit judgeship for Multnomah county.

Also being mentioned is William Lord of Portland, an active candidate for the office with support from at least one state labor organization.

For the new judge of the court of domestic relations, to assist Judge Donald E. Long, names of two persons mentioned here are Municipal Judge Virgil T. Langtry and Oliver Zimmerman, a member of the Multnomah county district attorney's staff.

Gov. Douglas McKay was expected to announce these appointments early next week.

Both of the new judgeships were created by an act of the recent legislature.

GROCERY TO MOVE

WOODBURN—The M & F grocery will move to the new building now being completed by Irvin Westensow on First street just south of the Pix theater about June 1, according to Bud Forgard, owner. The fixtures are being installed and a parking lot will be available in the rear of the store, he said. The grocery has been in its present location since 1942.

Burglar Hits North Salem District Again

Burglars struck again in north Salem Friday, taking $200 cash, a .22 calibre pistol and several checks from Oregon Feed and Farm Supply Co., 2700 Portland rd.

Police said entry was gained by forcing a rear door. The stolen items were taken from a filing cabinet which also was forced open. The break-in was discovered at 7:20 a.m. Detectives said the pistol was valued at $50, and the amount of the stolen checks was estimated at more than $100.

Meanwhile, investigation of a burglary at the Tip Top tavern, 2175 Fairgrounds rd., continued. About $85 was reported taken from a "juke box" there early Thursday.

Heating Plant Bids Above State Estimates

The state board of control Friday received a bid of $246,900 from the P. S. Lord Mechanical company, Portland, for installation of boiler connections and accessories at the Eastern Oregon state hospital at Pendleton.

Officials said the low bid exceeded the engineers' estimate by more than $100,000 and that revised plans probably would be requested.

Two higher bids were received. The bids probably will be considered at a meeting of the board of control Tuesday.

GATE FALLS OFF
ATLANTA, May 17 (AP)—Attendance figures for the Southern association baseball clubs for games through May 13 show a net loss of 26 per cent, compared to last year, with only two clubs making gains. Losses by the other six clubs totaled 141,395. The net loss for the eight teams was 107,824.

Polio Aid Collection Figures in 40 et 8 Antics

Strollers on downtown Salem streets Saturday will be confronted by strangely costumed men waving coin collection boxes. The antics will be those of the American Legion's Marion county 40 et 8 during its spring "wreck." The new members, or "goofs," will be on the streets from 3 p.m. on, collecting funds to defray expense of water treatments for polio victims in the YMCA swimming pool. Above, from left, R. C. Blaxall, sous grand garde des prisonnier; Don Apperson, as a goof; Bert Victor, chef de gare, and Jim Garyin, commissair intendant. (Statesman photo.)

Grain Prices Dive Again

CHICAGO, May 18 (AP)—Grains went into another late tailspin on the board of trade today and ended with fairly substantial losses and a definitely weak appearance.

The market had started out quite bravely, too, running up for gains of about a cent in major cereals.

Shortly before noon the market started retreating. To a considerable extent this was attributed to a bad break at Winnipeg, features by limit drops of 15 cents in flax. Prices held for a while and then went into a renewed retreat just before the close.

Wheat ended 1 to 2 cents lower, corn 1/4-1/2 lower, oats 1/4 to 3/4 cents lower, rye (old style) 1/4-3/4 lower, soybeans unchanged to 3 cents lower and lard 3 to 7 cents a hundred pounds lower.

Oregon State Fair to Open September 1

This year's state fair will start on Saturday, September 1, and continue until the night of September 9 the state fair board decided at a meeting here Friday.

The decision was reached after delegations from five counties, originally adverse to the program, withdrew their objections.

Dr. E. B. Stewart, fair board president, said counties represented at the meeting included Washington, Wasco, Linn, Curry and Clackamas. It originally was contended that the earlier opening of the state fair would conflict with their county fairs.

Opening of the fair on Saturday, preceding Labor Day, will provide an additional day of raising. Stewart said plans for this year's fair were progressing satisfactorily and an effort would be made to enlarge the livestock and agricultural exhibits.

WU Student Council Broadening Studied

A plan for organizing off-campus men and women into the student council will come up for vote by the Willamette university student body next week.

By this plan one town man and one town woman will be elected to the student council. Voting will be May 24 and 25 on the issue with other proposals of the campus "Little Hoover" commission.

Among other measures to be decided will be a plan to award annually 30 keys and 25 certificates to seniors who have contributed most to the university.

Oregon Council Of Churches Incorporated

Articles of incorporation for the Oregon Council of Churches, including most Protestant churches in the state, were filed in the state corporation department Friday.

Headquarters will be in Portland. The council, in its application, said it is an "interdenominational agency for cooperation in Christian education, united Protestant planning and strategy, social relations, evangelism, migrant ministry and other Christian activities."

The incorporators are members of the council's governing board and include Dr. Walter C. Giersbach, Forest Grove, president of Pacific university; Judge Frank E. Day, Portland, and Dr. Chester W. Hamblin, pastor of the First Presbyterian church of Salem.
