Cider-Sipping Days Over at Stayton Jail

Statesman News Service
STAYTON—No more sipping hard cider through a straw for prisoners at Stayton's city jail. Police Chief Larry Wright reports a walk to the jail entrance has been enclosed to thwart inmates who occasionally imbibed while incarcerated.

Wright said they would induce friends to bring a bottle to the jail door, then stick a straw through the door's close-mesh netting.

The enclosed walk also ends the hazard of policemen being dumped into the Salem waterway while marching belligerent prisoners to jail, the chief added. 1d 1/2 teingthlacoSRiohlaacayo
