

More and more involved in becoming a successful lawyer, which takes time and lots of it. Bruce Williams yows this is the last su he'll be at the mike for Salem Senator ball games. Being play-by-play man (and a good one) for a ball club almost every night of ball club almost every night of the weeks from April into September usually is a career within itself. But with Williams it's merely a sidelight to a law practice that is steadily growing. Along with thousands of others we hope that Bruce can modulate his schedule to the extent that he won't have to give up the broadcasts. For losing him would be comparable to dropping the "S" from Senators. He's been that much as a booster and as a part of the summertime Waters field productions ... Forced on by the urging of a newspaper and despite the Portland Beaver policy tabooing special "nights" for ballplayers, the official "Ad Liska Night" has been dated for the Bevo park August 10. A total of 8500 pictures of the little submarine pitcher are to be given away that night and a committee is now working on filling up a cash purse for him. Supreme court Justice Tooze is in charge of the committee. Liska's bad year as manager of the Senators last season didn't leave too good a taste with many local fans. But there will be thousands at the Vaughn street ball yard August 10 to pay tribute to the gent who toiled for 14 years as a Portland pitcher, winning 198 games...Inci-dentally, Gen. Mgr. Hugh Luby definitely wants Liska to pitch at least one inning during the "Oldtimers Game" here Saturday night, August 4. Liska will hurl for the Portland Oldsters, and from what

August 4. Liska will hurl for the Portland Oldsters, and from what we hear from Ted Norbert who is rounding up the Portlanders, he'll have a dandy array of talent including himself, Liska, Syl Johnson, Moose Clabaugh, Ed Coleman, Lair Gregory, Eddie Adams and others. As for the Salem Oldtimers, being lined up by Jim Mosolf for the big game, they'll boast such memorables as Wes Schul-merich, Walter (The Great) Mails, Howard Maple. Carl Mays, Jack Wilson, Ken Williams, Billy Sullivan, Frank Coleman and others. Mails himself is to pitch for the Salems, according to plans. Whittaker Shows Promise as Pitcher

Kid to keep an eye on as a possible future pitching phenom is Ron Whittaker, 15-year-old member of Vince Genna's Capital Post Legion junior staff. Fresh out of Parrish junior high, Whittaker has all the tools thus far. If he can develop them within the next three or four years, he could be a sweetheart for some pro club to pick off. Ron has the best curve we've seen for a young kid in these parts since "Cowboy Joe" Carroll twirled for the Legion nine of some seven years ago.

New Legion rule this year amounts to a fine break for the Salems too. Coach Genna now gets to select players off other teams in this district as a measure of strengthening his C-P squad. In years past it was the other way around. While Salem because of its population was restricted to using players from one high school, other teams were eligible to draw from as many as five and six schools

Being permitted to add strength to what already appears to be a strong Legion team, Genna could be a mighty tough hombre to beat when the state tourney rolls around in August

Eugene Fans Don't Think Much of Bonus Babies

Seems that it will take quite a bit of convincing to now assure Eugene baseball fans that young bonus ballplayers are worthy of their keep. The Eugene Larks, dead last in the Class D Far West loop have around $70,000 worth of Pittsburgh Pirate bonus bables. But so far most have been able to do little other than stand around as if the're tired or bored. This we learn from a group of red hot Larks fans who, like many others these days figure that young baseball hopefuls are spolled rotten when they're given a few thousand dollars for signing a contract. The kids have it made, so to speak, and consequently don't care much

IGHTNER Jones, Abbott Top Armory Mat Bee

Warning to mat fans from Matchmaker Elton Owen: If you don't like your Tuesday night slambangos on the rough and tough side, better not bother with tonight's card at the Ferry Street Garden. Despite having to knock one mix from the card because of a mixup in bookings, Owen has lined up an all-rough Dale Haddock evening for the armory clientele, same capped by the Rufus (Hard Top) Jones vs. Cowboy Abbott rematch main event that will bring its winner a match with the famous "Gorgeous George" here next week.

The Frenchy Roy-Mike Nazerian match has bee niaken off the card due to the mixup, but Owen may install another one-fall mix at the last minute as a replace ment. Otherwise the card will get started at 8:30 p.m. with "Gentle-man Dale" Haddock going against George Strickland. Fans who know him also know that the "Gentleman" tag is stretching things considerable for Haddock.

The special, to be a 2-of-3 faller along with theopener, has Con (5-by-5) Brune squaring off with Irish Jack O'Riley. Both are decidedly mat naughties, and good ones. O'Riley is unbeaten here since his return to local action a few weeks ago, and the squat Brune has been as impressive as any matador to show here in many weeks.

The Jones-Abbott melee of last week was a blood - spattered dandy, won by Abbott finally when Rowdy Rufe was disqualified for putting the slug on the referee. Usually that is a per "hold" employed by Abbott, At any rate Owen is taking no chances in the "no disqualification" rematch. He, hopes to have Burly Bucko Davidson here to referee it.

McGINNIS FIELD, Silverton, July 23-(Special)-Archer Blower and Albina Fuel teams of Portland tonight advanced to the semifinal round of the State Semipro baseball tournament here before approximately 650 fans.
