One would think that the General Mills outfit, maker of the well-known breakfast cereal "Wheaties," would know better. The company has an eye-catching display ad in many of the stores these days, same exhibiting a moving likeness of Ted Williams swinging a bat. But lo, the splendid splinter is batting right-handed in the ad, a mistake that elmost any baseball-minded small fry will detect but quickly. But come to think of it, perhaps the makers of the "Breakfast of Champions" rigged it up that way purposely just so give like up purposely just so guys like us would make special mention of it. would make special mention of it.

the Salem side for the "Oldtimers' Game" at Waters field August 4. Now on the club with such worthies as Jim Mosolf, Walter (The Great) Mails, Howard Maple, Wes Schulmerich, Jack Wilson, Billy Sullivan and Frank Coleman are Loris Baker, Oregon State's assistant athletic director who played plenty of baseball in the Coast and International leagues; Erc Kay, one of the greatest all-around athletes produced by the village in the past 50 years; Harry Collins, who once was a Tiger in the old

Northwest loop around Aberdeen and Marty Bosch, another native with a baseball past who is now employed at Valley Motor Co. Ken Williams, one of the game's great hitters years ago and now a resident of Grants Pass reluctantly turned down the invitation to join the Salem team. In ill health, Williams has been forbidden to exert himself in any needless way by his doctor . . .

Good to See DiMag Smiling Again

Speaking of oldtimers it was good to see a smiling Joe DiMaggio included in recent wirephoto pictures involving the post-game congratulations rendered Allie Reynolds for his no-hitter and the welcome of new pitcher Art Shallock to the Yankee club. DiMag's grinning mug was front and near center in both shots, Were one to believe the rumors now flitting about, the famed Yankee Clipper who one day will be a cinch addition to the Hall of Fame is fading faster than MacArthur. He has been accused of hiding in the corners of the Yankee dugont where he doesn't speak to his manager, fellow players or Yankee officials. Some newsmen have him as a sour-pussed old pouter who does little other than gripe and growl as he dodders away.

But to us, seeing the famous DiMag smile again while with fellow players and Mgr. Stengel proves that Joe isn't yet socially or physically ready for the scrap heap some would have him already in. At 36 the "Old Pro" might still have it in him to clobber a few enemy pitchers and help the Yankees as only he could in a late-season pennant drive.

Were he to do so he'd button up but emphatically all his critics, just as Ted Williams does with his big bat when they decide it's time to tee off on him again . . .

Mac Says He Won't Win a Game (Ha!)

Football practice is still some weeks away, but OCE's Bill McArthur is pulling a Frank Leahy on us. Assuring that he hasin't been out in the hot sun too long, Bill also insists that his Welves will be lucky if they win a single game next fall. Reminded that they play George Fox college during the same autumn, Mac quickly reacts with, "Well, we might give them a good ball game."

Loss of numerous regulars, including Gurviest Langley and Robin Lee are principal reasons for McArthur's gloom-filled prediction. But he hosn't lost all of 'em, and will have back again one of the finest ball packers in the state in Jim Ortlief.
