

Salem's Naval Reserve Wins Admiral's Nod

Rear Adm. Allan E. Smith (left), new commandant of the 13th naval district, was in Salem Thursday on an inspection tour of naval and marine reserve establishments. He is shown leaving the center with Lt. Comdr. George Bunn, inspector-instructor of the Salem navy unit.

Gold braid and gold stripes glittered briefly in Salem Thursday when Rear Adm. Allan E. Smith, new commandant of the 13th naval district, paid a visit to the naval and marine corps reserve training center here, and to Gov. Douglas McKay.

Smith arrived in Salem by navy plane, in company with members of his staff, Lt. Comdr. W. C. Mackey, aide; Capt. M. C. Parr, acting reserve coordinator, and Comdr. R. E. Thomlinson, assistant public relations information officer.

Smith replaces Rear Admiral Daniel E. Barbey, retired as head of the district.

Recently returned from Korean duty as a commander of the U.N. blockading and escort force, the admiral is probably better known as the skipper of the cruiser force that successfully dislodged the battleship Missouri from its resting place on a sandbar in the middle of Chesapeake bay in 1950.

Mrs. Orey Dies In Grants Pass

Mrs. Clara Orey, former Salem resident, died Tuesday at a hospital in Grants Pass, where she had resided for the past six years.

Daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Hastings of Salem, Mrs. Orey was born in Toronto, Canada, Oct. 17, 1904.

Survivors include her husband, Wren Orey; a daughter and two sons, all of Grants Pass; four sisters, Mrs. Hanna Goughnour, Mrs. Lawrence Beary, Mrs. Roy Swicker and Mrs. Marjorie Farley, all of Salem, and three brothers, including George Hastings of Salem.

George Orey of Salem and Roy Orey of Independence are brothers-in-law of the deceased.

Locomotives average 65 per cent more power today than 30 years ago.

Howitzer Crew Fires at Fort Lewis

FT. LEWIS, Wash.—The signal to fire its 105 mm howitzer is awaited here by a gun crew of the 929th field artillery battalion, northwest army reserve group in summer training. PFC Harold Godkin, chief of howitzer section, stands at right ready to relay the command of the executive officer. Other crew members from left, are PFC Kenneth C. Jones, Scotts Mills; Duane D. Marshall, Jr., 2910 N. Front St., Salem; PFC James E. Nelson, Portland; Sgt. Jack F. Hill, 2370 S. Cottage st., Salem; and Peter A. Eisel, Stayton route 1. Officer in charge was 2nd Lt. Robert G. Coates, 227 Menlo dr., Salem. (Army photo.)

Big Guns Fired By Salem, Valley Soldiers at Camp

FT. LEWIS, Wash., Aug. 16—(Special)—An opportunity to fire 105 mm howitzers on the range at Ft. Lewis was given this week to most members of the 929th field artillery battalion, part of the army reserve's 104th division, in summer training here.

Most of the battalion is from the Salem, Ore., area.

The unit is nearing the end of two weeks of organized reserve corps camp and will break camp Saturday. It will return to Salem Sunday by bus.

Seattle Hears New Protest Of Can-Can

SEATTLE, Aug. 16—(AP)—A delegation describing itself as a "group of Christian people" personally protested to Mayor William F. Devin late today over the possible reappearance of can-can dancers at Seattle's dockside welcome-home receptions for Korean war veterans.

The delegation protesting against displays of flesh and fluff was led by Mrs. Ruth Albrecht, a little grey-haired woman whose letter to a newspaper recently started a controversy raging over the welcomes for the troops.

One delegation proposed troopships be met by a Salvation Army band playing Christian songs.

The mayor told the delegation he believed a Christian group should exercise tolerance.

"I have never heard anyone object to drum majorettes and those girls are more exposed than can-can dancers," he said.

The navy transport Gen. H. B. Freeman docked today with 1,136 rotation troops aboard. They shouted and whistled from the decks as one bathing beauty and five drum majorettes pranced along the pier. But no can-can dancers.

National Guard Major Advisor To Salem Units

Maj. Olaf I. Carlson has been assigned to the Salem units of 1st battalion, 162nd infantry of the national guard as advisor-instructor, guard headquarters said Thursday.

The 1st battalion has units located also in Silverton, McMinnville, Dallas and Albany.

Carlson recently completed a tour of duty in Germany. During World War II he served with the 9th infantry regiment during the Normandy, Ardennes, northern France, Rhineland and central Europe campaigns.

He replaces Maj. Frank W. Keating, reassigned to the Far East command.

Royal Baby

LONDON, Aug. 16—Princess Anne Elizabeth Alice Louise, third in succession to the British throne, looks serenely from the security of her royal mother's arms on her first birthday. ### Many View Hearst Casket at Cathedral

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16—(AP)—People from many walks of life today filed in silence past the rose-banked, bronze casket of William Randolph Hearst.

The body of the late publisher lay in state at Grace cathedral, where his funeral will be held at 11 a.m. PDT tomorrow. The cathedral is a few blocks from the place where Hearst was born 88 years ago.

CUBAN HERO SUICIDE

HAVANA Cuba, Aug. 16—(AP)—Senator Eduardo Chibas, 44, a hero to many Cubans for his vehement attacks on the government, died today. He shot himself.

Guild Writers' Label Sought

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16—(AP)—Rep. Vail (R-Ill.) introduced a resolution in the house today to require newspaper publishers to label any articles or editorials written by members of the American Newspaper Guild - CIO.

Under Vail's proposal, the ab-brevention ANG-CIO would have to be inserted "under the caption and above each article, editorial, column or commentary" written by a Guild member. He also would require an explanation of the abbreviation in the newspaper's masthead.

"To this insurance against insidious propaganda the American public is justly entitled," Vail told the house in a speech in which he declared "the CIO radicals" are trying to control the nation's press through the newspaper guild.
