IMPROVES TV SIGNALS
NEW YORK—(AP)—Micro-wave radio links have been found in television network relaying which permit the passage of better signals, TV engineers here say. This is attributed to the fact that present coaxial cables limit the width of the signal, tending to cut down on the transmission. In micro-waving, wider bands are permissible, thereby eliminating such handicaps.

Marion County Again Records Fewer Births

Births and deaths in Marion county continued to show a decline over comparable figures of 1950, according to statistics released Thursday by the county health department executive board.

Births were down by 50 during July with 207 reported in the county compared with 257 last year. New boys outnumbered girls, 111 to 96.

Total births in the county since January were 1,466, more than 100 less than the 1,589 reported in the same period of 1950.

Total deaths, 32 women and 32 men, were down slightly from the 71 of July 1950. But 19 more deaths, 493, were reported in the county since January than the 474 reported for the same period in 1950. Four of these, two more than in July, 1950, were for infants under one month.

Heart disease was listed as the major cause of death, responsible for 13, a big drop from the 35 deaths from heart disease during July 1950. The total of 134 deaths from this cause since January was also down from the 162 during the same period a year ago.

Other major causes were arterial diseases, 9, for July and 88 for the first seven months; cancer, 8 and 65, and kidney diseases, 3 and 25. Apoplexy, which took 62 lives during the first seven months of 1950, was responsible for only 18 this year. And arterial diseases took only 27 lives in the first seven months of 1950. Automobile accidents were responsible for two deaths during July, and 12 during the first seven months.

The first seven months of 1951 were far more disease-ridden than the same period last year. Influenza, with 1,611 cases, led the list, followed by 438 of mumps and 429 of measles. In 1950 mumps, with 174, was the outstanding disease, followed by chickenpox with 146. Measles, however, with 37 cases, was the only serious disease in the county during July.

Dry Spell Favors Harvest, But Hard on Spring Grain Crops, Grasses, Mint, Hay

While continued dry weather has been favorable for harvesting crops in Oregon this summer, it has not been favorable in producing top crops in many of the commodities.

As a result of the dry season, Willamette valley spring grain crops are disappointingly light.

An additional loss by barley producers has resulted in a large part of the crop not meeting grade requirements for malting barley, with a resulting lower price when sold as feed barley. Much of the barley failed to grow tall enough for harvest and some farmers this past week have turned their cattle and sheep into the fields to pasture them off.

Spring wheat crops in the main producing centers are suffering a little from lack of moisture. This is true in the Pacific northwest. It is also the case in the main producing area of the central northern states. The dry weather, however, now indicates that there will be an increased percentage of high protein wheat.

Winter Wheat Looks Good
Harvesting winter wheat is about completed in the valley and the crop in the state of Oregon, including the big wheat producing area east of the mountains will be the second largest crop of record for the state.

Shippers' quotations to growers for common ryegrass seed in the Willamette valley producing area during the week just ending, were unchanged to one-half cent, hundred-weight higher than the previous week.

While some shippers were not buying during the week, when purchases were made, $9 to $9.15 was paid. These prices were for seed testing 99 per cent purity and 90 per cent germination, cleaned and sacked at warehouses.

Most Oregon shippers still estimate that the 1951 common ryegrass will be 30 to 35 per cent below last year's crop.

Hairy Vetch Demand Slow
Demand for hairy vetch in the Willamette valley was slow during the past week. Valley shippers offered 14 to 14½ cents a pound since January and the 474 reported for the same period in 1950. Four of these, two more than in July, 1950, were for infants under one month.

Heart disease was listed as the major cause of death, responsible for 13, a big drop from the 35 deaths from heart disease during July 1950. The total of 134 deaths from this cause since January was also down from the 162 during the same period a year ago.

Other major causes were arterial diseases, 9, for July and 88 for the first seven months; cancer, 8 and 65, and kidney diseases, 3 and 25. Apoplexy, which took 62 lives during the first seven months of 1950, was responsible for only 18 this year. And arterial diseases took only 27 lives in the first seven months of 1950. Automobile accidents were responsible for two deaths during July, and 12 during the first seven months.

In 1950 mumps, with 174, was the outstanding disease, followed by chickenpox with 146. Measles, however, with 37 cases, was the only serious disease in the county during July.

INFLATION—1776 BRAND
NEW YORK—(AP)—Letters of a merchant and his family, given to the New York public library by the estate of Bayard Blackwell Rodman, show the high cost of living in 1776.

"A green bonnet" made for a lady in those Revolutionary days cost $2. A 16-pound side of lamb cost $3. A 23-pound hind of veal cost $5.50.

The National Geographic Society says oil production of Sakhalin Island, off the Siberian coast, is estimated at 6,000,000 barrels a year.

On the whole, condition of Oregon peppermint is only fair. Initially, the stands are thin and weak and weeds have been especially troublesome this year. The extended drought here, too, has required considerable water. Insect damage has been about normal and rust, while generally evident, is not as serious as at this time last season.

Oregon now tops all other states in peppermint acreage, although it is about 16 per cent below 1950. Grass Crops Below Normal

Crop reporting surveys show considerable less grass than normal during July, particularly west of the Cascades. Hay is being fed in some areas of the Willamette valley. Sheep and lambs have maintained their generally good but slightly below average condition in spite of dry pastures. Sheep and lamb receipts on the markets have been running below last year's with the demand very strong for feeders.

While the nation's hay crop as a whole is reported the largest ever harvested, Oregon's is slightly under last year's crop. Alfalfa markets have been strong throughout the summer. Demand is very active. The small amounts of valley alfalfa hay disappeared early at practically the same prices as the eastern Oregon product brought.

Hop crop in the Pacific northwest is reported at 3 per cent above last year and 28 per cent above average. Hops in the valley in non-irrigated yards deteriorated sharply during July because of continued hot, dry weather and a heavy infestation of red spider. Irrigated hops, however, continue in good condition with picking in early yards well underway.

Fruite Crop Down
DALLAS, Ore., Aug. 16—(AP)—This year's crop will be down as much as 30 per cent from earlier estimates, County Agent John Hansen said he had been told by some Polk county growers. They blamed hot, dry weather.

Norblad Appeals For Steel Needed In Salem Bridge

U. S. Rep. Walter Norblad, in a letter to state officials here Thursday, said he had appealed to the national production authority for a review of steel allocations for bridge construction in the various states.

Norblad's action followed recent highway commission protests that steel for Salem's new Marion street was being delayed.

Norblad stressed that new Oregon bridges were needed in connection with the national defense program.
