Salem Employers Fail to Get Work Permits for 15 Children

During a three-week period in August, 15 workers under 18 years of age employed in Salem were taken off the job because their employers had failed to get work permits for them from the bureau of labor, Commissioner W. E. Kimsey announced Saturday.

"Several of these cases involved minors under the age of 15," Kimsey declared, and "one involved a girl of 13 working in a restaurant."

Salem employers have a good reputation for complying with the child labor laws, the labor commissioner pointed out, but "each employer must get his own permit from the bureau of labor before he can put a minor under 18 years of age on a job," he said.

Those under 16 years of age have special restrictions on the kinds of work they are permitted to do and are allowed to work only between 7 a.m. and 6 p.m. Since it is quite a tradition among under-16 minors to work at the fair, the commissioner explained that "youngsters working for concessionaires are permitted to do fountain work such as selling pop, ice cream, candy and such wares. They can wash dishes and prepare vegetables for the eating places on the midway between the daytime hours of 7 and 6."

There are no restrictions, as to the time of day a minor between 16 and 18 years may work as long as working hours do not exceed eight daily for a 44-hour week. Most types of work are open to the older age group except for jobs in hazardous occupations such as logging.

Mayor A. W. Loucks is to report on conferences with Frederick Lamport and other residents of McGilchrist street regarding improvement of the street, especially pertaining to the Lamport tennis court jutting into the street, subject of a protest. The matter has been in council for seven weeks.

Sidewalk Construction
Final action is slated for ordinance bills changing rules for sidewalk construction, licensing charitable solicitations, authorizing a 10-year franchise for a Southern Pacific railroad spur across Howard street, permitting Elinore and Capitol theatres to install special marquees, establishing the office of assistant city attorney, changing the name of Mildred Lane to Holder lane, amending the anti-noise ordinance to allow certain noises until 9 p.m. rather than 6 p.m., providing for sale of $75,000 in bridge bonds and $250,000 in sewer bonds.

Opposes Move
The planning and zoning commission has recommended against a request for Capital laundry signs in the parking strip, for naming an unnamed westside street Westwood drive, for giving Victory circle three names to avoid numbering confusion—Chelsea avenue, Hilltop drive and Belarie street, for designating Salem postoffice as the agency to assign house numbers outside the city limits in continuance of the city system.

There also are requests before the council for stop signs at 17th and Madison street, four-way stop at 17th and D streets and four-way stop at 19th and Nebraska streets.

Tennis Court Bowling on Council Agenda

Salem city council's agenda will run the gamut from bowling alleys to tennis courts Monday night at 7:30 in city hall, but the emphasis won't be on sports. Those are merely two of the wide variety of topics slated for consideration.

The bowling matter is a letter from B&B Bowling court asking that bowling alleys be allowed to resume giving free games for high score of the week and giving cash prizes for exceptionally high scores. The police department had ordered cessation of the practice several months ago.

Mayor A. W. Loucks is to report on conferences with Frederick Lamport and other residents of McGilchrist street regarding improvement of the street, especially pertaining to the Lamport tennis court jutting into the street, subject of a protest. The matter has been in council for seven weeks.

State Employees Association Asks Pay Hike

An increase in pay for all state employees "sufficient to hold qualified and experienced employees in service," was urged at a meeting here Saturday of the board of directors of the Oregon State Employees association.

The board also said it approved and recommended for adoption "the corrections requested by the state prison chapter for improving the efficiency in operation of the state prison."

The prison chapter recently reported that low pay and inadequate training of guards was partially responsible for the trouble at the prison.

In support of its request for more pay the OSEA reported that there has been about 5,000 resignations from state service in the last year by employees who have resigned to accept better paying jobs.

"Many of these resigned employees were skilled employees trained in state service and their loss has resulted in increased costs due to the high expense involved in training replacements."

The board said a high pay program would result in increased efficiency and savings to Oregon taxpayers. The board also commended the civil service board for granting recent pay increases to civil engineers in state service.

F. Gordon Shattuck, Salem, was appointed chairman of a committee to make a survey of salary trends and living costs for a future meeting of the board of directors.

NOTICE

The Home Insulation Co. Has Leased the Fiber Fluff Manufacturing Plant

WHAT IS FIBER FLUFF?
FIBER FLUFF is a wood pulp insulation. The wood pulp is made into newsprint paper; this paper is then ground into a woolly substance at the same time a fire or flame proofing chemical is also ground into the paper pulp, making into one of the most efficient and economical insulating materials available today.

Fiber Fluff Gives You More Insulating Qualities and More Economy

THE insulation, except the chemical used, is a complete Oregon product. The great pulp and paper companies digest all the liquid and solid substances from the wood, leaving nothing but the fibers. The great daily newspapers aid the process further by coating each side with high carbon, fast drying ink, aiding in lowering the "thermal conductivity rating," or "k" factor. The local Boy Scout paper drives and other newspaper drives help to bring this material back into our plant for use to give you, the Home owner, the finest insulation from the "k" factor and the dollar and cents standpoint.

WE PLEDGE AND GUARANTEE

THAT we will maintain the same high standards that has made the Home Insulation Co. so popular with the Willamette Valley Home owners the past two years. And that we will use a grade and amount of chemical to guarantee our insulation to be flame proof and vermin proof for the life of the building, as long as we lease and manufacture Fiber Fluff Insulation.
