Healthiest Polk Girl and Boy Named at Fair

MONMOUTH — Healthiest boy and girl of Polk county, as judged at the county fair, are Leslie Petersen, 14, of Oak Point and Maxine Fickel, 13, of Buena Vista.

Leslie, son of Mr. and Mrs. Grove Peterson, graduated from the eighth grade at Oak Point in June and will enter Central high school this fall. He is interested in general farming and won a second prize at the county fair on his Duroc Jersey hogs, which he will enter at the state fair. He has an older brother and three older sisters.

Maxine, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Fickel, won the county health trophy, with a few more points than the healthiest boy. For two years she has been judged the healthiest girl of the county. She will be in the eighth grade this year at Buena Vista school, has taken 4-H sewing for three years. Her sewing project won a blue ribbon at the fair and will be entered at the state fair. She has two sisters and a brother, all younger.

Swingsters Play at Fair

Polk Awards Roof Contract

DALLAS, Sept. 1—Contract for re-roofing the Polk county courthouse was awarded Friday to Oregon Bar-Tile company of Portland, the only bidder.

The new tile roof will replace a covering installed only four years ago, which has proved "entirely unsatisfactory," according to the county court.

Work will begin right after Labor Day.

Dallas Ice Cream Business Bought

DALLAS—The Dallas Ice Queen store, at Washington and Main streets, has been sold by Don Wernli to three partners, R. W. Zoller, accountant at Vancouver, Wash.; J. A. Anderson, Mt. Angel theater owner, and Alan Brown, who operates an ice cream shop in Silverton.

Anderson arrived in Dallas this past week to begin operating the business under the new ownership. Wernli's plans are uncertain. He owns the building and the lot on which the Ice Queen store is located and is leasing it to the new partnership.

Valley Obituaries

Marion C. Cox
Funeral services for Marion Clarence Cox, who died Friday at a Silverton hospital, will be at 2 p.m. Tuesday, September 4, at Boliman funeral chapel here, with the Rev. H. G. Gieseke of Corvallis officiating. Burial will be at Belcrest Memorial park in Salem. Cox was born March 17, 1909, at Magnet, Nebr., and was married April 8, 1945, at Vanport, Ore., to Judith Vigland, who survives. He came to Rickreall from Nebraska in 1934 and to Dallas in 1938. A head rigger in logging, he resided here until moving to Dallas three months ago. Death followed a year's illness.

Cox was a member of Willamette aerie 2081, Eagles lodge.

Commercial Floats, Saddle Horse Contest New Events Slated in North Marion Fair

WOODBURN — A new feature of this year's parade held during the annual North Marion county fair September 20-22 will be a section of commercial floats entered by local business firms, announces Phil Branson, chairman of the Junior Chamber of Commerce.

The parade will be held on Saturday afternoon, the last day of the fair. The commercial section will be divided between farm implement units and business floats, he said.

Another new section of the parade will be for best decorated saddle horse and rider from Marion county. A cash prize will be offered.

The children's section of the parade will again be a highlight, with arrangements now being made for new groupings.

The perpetual trophy offered for the best high school entry in the parade will be up for competition again this year and all high schools in Marion county have been asked to provide floats and bands.

J. F. Lacy, general chairman, stated that this year's fair will be patterned more along the lines of the "old-fashioned fair" than any other event held in this area and more so than any of the previous North Marion county fairs.

The fair is free and exhibits by farmers and their families will receive emphasis. Commercial displays will be limited to the space available after competitive exhibits have been arranged, he said.

Entries will be divided into adult and junior divisions with no special classifications for 4-H clubs and Future Farmers of America.

Monmouth — Violet McFarland has been appointed instructor in education and supervisor of teaching in the campus elementary schools at Oregon College of Education. She received her bachelor's degree from Eastern Illinois State college and master's from University of Illinois. She has taught in Chrisman, Ill.

Sheridan — Local residents using city water may now have all they need. Water Commissioner Robert Cole announced that the city reservoir is full for the first time in many weeks.

Mt. Angel — Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ferris and Ellen left Saturday for a vacation that will take them to Idaho to visit friends and relatives.

Brooks — The Sewing club will meet Thursday afternoon, September 6, at the home of Mrs. Nona Sidebottom.

Dallas — Marriage licenses have been issued by Polk county clerk to Ronald R. Ruggles, 18, and Betty J. Cox, 18, both of Dallas, and to Robert B. New, 18, and Barbara Whitwell, 16, both of Monmouth.

Dallas Seeks Blood Donors

DALLAS—At least 200 blood donors is the goal for the next visit of the blood bank to Dallas, Wednesday, September 5.

This is not the regular scheduled time for the Dallas visit, but was originally scheduled for Valslet. That date was changed to October 22, because of the closure of logging operations in the Valslet area.

The unit will be stationed at the Presbyterian church here between the hours of 3 and 7 p.m. Wednesday.

North Marion High Registers Sept. 6-7

HUBBARD—Registration at the North Marion union high school is scheduled for Thursday and Friday, September 6 and 7, from 1 to 2 p.m.

School will open Monday, September 10, and classes will be conducted all day. The bus scheduled will remain the same as last year with Clarence Friend, Veri Cochran and Lester Pulley driving the three buses.

roll at Hazel Green school when it opens for registration on Friday, September 7.

15 Entries in 'Grassman of Year' Contest

The "Grass Is Gold" contest for Oregon's "Grassman of the Year" has attracted entries from 15 counties of the state. Their farms range from 29 to 15,000 acres.

The winner will be given a $500 cash award and a trophy by Gov. Douglas McKay at the state fair on Thursday.

The Oregon winner also will compete with top contestants from Washington and Idaho for the regional title, with presentation to be made at the Pacific International Livestock exposition in Portland in October.

Oregon county winners include: Baker: Ira D. Staggs of Keating has increased his sheep and cattle production by more than 15 per cent in the past several years on his 13,500 acres of his own land, 2,000 acres of leased land, and community allotment of public domain grazing land.

Jackson: C. C. Hoover of Medford has long been prominent as a "grassman," having discovered winter bluegrass (poa bulbosa) and birdsfoot trefoil (lotus major). Some 550 head of beef cattle grow fat on his more than 3000 acres, which also carries an average of 1000 sheep.

Clackamas: Walter Fisher of Oregon City recently doubled the size of his ranch to 162 acres and is now bringing the new section, which was worn out grain land, up to the same high standard of production as the home place. Fisher now has 50 head of registered Polled Herefords.

Grant: George Barry of Dayville is getting more than 10 times as much production off his land since he began his grass program. Some 480 of his 518 acres of rangeland used to feed 20 cows for one month. Now Barry has 30 head and plans on increasing his herd of Herefords.

Harney: The Jenkins brothers, Tom and Dick, operate two ranches jointly near Diamond. Much of the headquarters ranches are in grass.

Jefferson: Millard Rodman of Culver has 300 of his 480 acres of irrigated land in grass and legumes. Located on the North Unit project, the new irrigated land carries 150 head of cattle except during the spring months when they are on public grazing land. Steers gain 2 1/2 pounds per day on the improved pasture.

Klamath: Wolf Brothers & Son, Chiloquin, started on a grass program about three years ago after first making numerous sizable trial seedings of various grasses. The ranch consists of 2,770 acres.

Lake: Dan Schumacher of Silver Lake started a program in 1941 to increase the forage on his seeded

Residents of Suburb Plan to Fight Eviction

PORTLAND, Sept. 1 — (AP) — A court restraining order is to be sought against eviction of residents of Marlene village, a suburb west of here, an attorney said today.

Nine residents of the village received notices from Harry Mittleman Contractor, Inc., builder ordering them out of their homes by October 1. Similar notices were expected by others.

"Not a single one of the nine is going to move an inch," Verne Newcomb, attorney and resident of the village, said. He added that he would file court action next week.

At a meeting of 30 householders last night, it was decided to ask a contribution of $2 each from village residents to finance the court battle.

The Veterans administration refused to approve loans on the homes because of improper drainage at the site. Many of the homes already had been sold to veterans.

Substitute financing programs under private loans or through the FHA were offered by Mittleman. The veterans, however, demanded a solution to the drainage problem so they could get GI financing with lower interest rates and lower down payments.
