

Beria Claims Red Scientists Lead in World

By Eddy Gilmore
 MOSCOW, Nov. 7—(AP)—Lavrenty P. Beria, one of the top men of the Soviet Politburo, claimed today that Russian technicians have captured first place in the world of science and "recently solved a series of most important scientific problems of economic and defensive significance."
 Beria was the principal speaker at the traditional Bolshevik theater meeting on the eve of the anniversary of the Soviet Union's revolutionary founding. Tomorrow the Red Square parade on the 34th anniversary will be reviewed by Marshal Rodio Malinovski, leading Soviet commander against the Japanese in the Second World War.

Beria told the Western world in his address that the Soviets would crush any attack upon them and said they had the weapons to do it.
 "As the world well knows, the Soviet army and navy possess unparalleled morale fighting qualities and have at their disposal all types of contemporary weapons," he said.

He promised the Russian people that more food and clothing would be available to them.
 Other members of the politburo sat on the stage, decorated by huge portraits of Stalin and Lenin, framed in lush red velvet, and revolutionary flags held by rigid armed guards.

The broad-shouldered, 52-year-old Beria said Soviet scientists had made a series of "most important discoveries" in economic and military fields, and Soviet industry had marked up great achievements but he rapped sharply the shortcomings of some executives.
 In the socialist economy, he said pointedly, "every executive, be his job a big one or small one, must place the interests of the state above all else and strictly observe state discipline."

(Beria is Russia's super-policeman. Although publicly relieved of his title of commissar of internal affairs and chief of secret police in 1946, he is believed to have retained over-all supervision of state security—including internal and external espionage, army morale, forced labor camps and a big atomic energy program.)

Four conferences were held with the Rev. Gabriel Morris, OSB, principal of Mt. Angel Preparatory, as retreat master. The first conference was held during the 8 a. m. mass, after which breakfast was served the retreatants in St. Mary's dining hall by the Knights of Columbus. The final conference ended with benediction at 4 p. m.
