Liquor Store Clerk Jobs Now Vacant

Announcement of several vacancies for liquor retail store clerks in various sections of the state was made Tuesday by James Clinton, state civil service director.

He said a recent ruling of the board of control raised the beginning salary of liquor store clerks from $210 to $225 a month. Also included in the increase were liquor enforcement inspectors from $261 to $284 a month. There are openings for this work in the Portland area.

Also reported by Clinton was an increasing demand for nurses in the state-operated hospitals. Three supervisory nurses and nine general duty nurses will be required when the new tuberculosis unit opens at the Oregon state hospital here early next year. General duty nurses are now needed at the main hospital.

At the state tuberculosis hospital in Salem there are openings for both superintendent and assistant superintendent of nurses.

Other current job openings include a calculating machine operator and revenue auditor in the state tax commission, and key punch operator in Portland. Clinton said persons desiring these jobs should report to the state civil service commission.

Baldock Cites Heavy Use of Highway 99

The Pacific highway, particularly from Eugene to Portland, probably is one of the most heavily traveled two-way arteries in the entire west, State Highway Engineer R. H. Baldock reported Tuesday.

Baldock, on his annual vacation, traveled in 10 western states where he observed traffic conditions. He attended the annual session of the American Association of Highway Officials at Omaha, Neb.

"Most officials at the meeting agreed," Baldock said, "that defense production officials in Washington, D.C., still lack proper understanding of the importance of building and maintaining the key highways of the nation."

He said government road building materials, under existing conditions, are inadequate to meet the demands of the various states. Baldock said it was evident that the steel supply would be extremely tight throughout the next year.

"This means it will be virtually impossible to obtain any structural steel for bridges until late in 1952," Baldock said. He emphasized that other states are facing the same highway problems as Oregon.

Baldock said under current conditions it would be necessary for the highway department to confine its operations largely to road construction with bridge building postponed for at least a year.

Cornelius Man to Head Oregon Swine Growers

John Haase of Cornelius was elected president of the Oregon Swine Growers association at its annual meeting held at Senator hotel Tuesday. Mr. Haase replaces George Kraus of Silvertown who has served this year.

Other officers named were Earl Drury of Fall Creek, vice president, and Ben Newell, Salem, secretary. New directors are Glenn Hawkins of Shedd and Wallace Sawtelle of Molalla.

Plans were made to hold four bred gilt sales in early spring with the first one set for Salem on February 2. The other three will be held at LaGrande, February 16; Prineville late in February, and Klamath Falls early in March.

Swine growers showed some concern as to a possible increase of brucellosis in the state. However, reports showed that out of 1,000 animals tested as they were going to slaughter, only three per cent reacted.

The swine men urged that more testing be done on the farms, however, so that a complete picture could be had. Breeders agreed that brucellosis is more difficult to detect in swine than in cattle and that it is a matter of herd testing rather than individual testing.

Mr. Newell reporting on past sales, said that in the 12 sales since 1946 held a total of 368 gilts had been sold at an average of $144 a head.

Al Oliver, professor in meats at Oregon State college, spoke on market show animals urging that more attention be given type. If correct type and proper feed and pasture management are had, Oregon can produce top market hogs, Oliver stated.

Dr. James Oldfield, OSC research specialist, spoke encouragingly on the progress being made in anemia and vitamin findings, and John Landers, county agent at large, OSC, said there was room for a lot of improvement in swine housing in Oregon. He also urged further study on swine feeding and housing management.

Fred Rubel of the Portland Union Stock yards complimented the swine growers on the great improvement in market swine which had been made in the past 25 years.

Immediately following the luncheon, Don Schmidt of Valley Farm store, showed a motion picture, "A Trip Through a Pig Factory" to the group of more than 100 swine growers in attendance.

Lewis O'Neal Dutton, 18, of Detroit, is to plead today in Stayton justice court to a charge of threatening commission of a felony, on which he was arrested Monday night at Detroit. He was held in Marion county jail in lieu of $1,000 bail.

Dutton, who asked 24 hours to plead when he appeared in court Tuesday, was arrested on complaint of Earl E. Layman, proprietor of the Cedar tavern, by Deputy Sheriffs Larry Wright and Harvey Frankum.

Layman alleged that Dutton, a newcomer from Decatur, Ala., brandished a knife and a gun when he was refused beer at the tavern.

Over $74,000 Requested in Damage Suit

More than $74,000 in damages for injuries allegedly sustained in a truck-motorcycle collision is sought in a complaint filed Tuesday in Marion county circuit court by Helen Vincent.

Defendants are Salem Heavy Hauling and Equipment company owned by F. S. Anusens, Paul B. Wallace, R. H. Hatfield, W. H. Muirhead and B. L. Carpenter, and the truck driver W. W. Ankeny.

The crash occurred June 24, 1950, on the Salem-Stayton road, four miles northwest of Stayton.

The plaintiff, a passenger on the motorcycle, alleged that she was thrown into a ditch and suffered compound fractures of the left arm and leg and several lacerations and shock. She asked for $70,000 general damages and a total of $4,478.88 special damages for medical and hospital treatment.

Twenty-six foreign students from six Oregon colleges will be guests on the Willamette university campus Friday and Saturday when the university plays host to "International Weekend."

The YWCA will sponsor the weekend for representatives from University of Oregon, Pacific, Willamette, Oregon State, Linfield and Lewis and Clark colleges.

A dinner honoring the foreign scholars will open the activities Friday night. Following the dinner there will be an informal open house sponsored by UNESCO. A period for discussion and meeting foreign students will be held also.

Saturday morning a tour of the campus and places of interest in Salem will be conducted for the guest students. That afternoon they will attend the Chiko-Willamette football game at McCulloch stadium.

Chairman for the International weekend is Marie Deetz, Oregon City. Assisting are: Daline Montag, Carolyn Vester and Heather Strange, all of Portland; Diana Hobart, Silvertown; Phyllis Muhs, Salem; Pat Moll, Union, Wash.

College Starts Fund Campaign

Willamette university's first combined Campus Chest and Red Cross drive got underway Tuesday with a $1,200 goal set. Friday is the fund deadline. Felix Calkins is chairman.

Dr. Victor H. Sword, former missionary in India, told students at Tuesday's chapel hour of India's need for assistance by the World Student Service fund.

Fifty per cent of Willamette's campus chest fund will be donated to Gachati university, Assam, India. Ten per cent each will be given the Salem Community chest, Marion County Red Cross, campus YMCA, campus YWCA and Willamette UNESCO.

Proceeds of Varsity Varieties, campus talent show to be presented Saturday night, will be given to the drive.

OSC Alumni Group to Meet

New officers will be installed at the Wednesday night dinner meeting of the Salem 30 State club, at 6:30 p.m. in Nohlgren's restaurant. The 30-State group is an Oregon State college alumni group of Salem.

Ralph Floberg, president of the Oregon State alumni association, and Portland insurance man, will install as new officers P. J. Blake, president; John Riches, vice president; and Jack Stewart, secretary-treasurer.

Movies will be shown of the Southern Cal-OSC football game where Oregon State came out on the short end of the score, 16-14.

Blake, newly elected president, said, "We are also attempting to get the game movies of the Washington-OSC football game, and, of course, any Oregon State male alumni living in the vicinity of Salem is welcome to attend the meeting."
