Production Theme of Wool Growers Meet

By Lillie L. Madsen
Farm Editor, The Statesman

PORTLAND, Nov. 20—Increased production is to be the theme of the 87th annual convention of the National Wool Growers association, December 4 to 7, when sheepmen from throughout the nation will travel to Portland on the "Sheepmen's Special," a train planned for the meeting.

This organization, which has been in existence since Civil War days, is composed of ranchers and farmers who produce the nation's lambs and wool. In addition to producer delegates, others in attendance at the convention will include wool manufacturers, wool merchants, meat packers and representatives of other allied industries.

Reservations, the Portland Chamber of Commerce committee reported today, are coming in from California, Oregon, Washington, Idaho, Montana, Nevada, Utah, Colorado, New Mexico, Wyoming, South Dakota, Texas, Illinois, Iowa, New York, Massachusetts and the District of British Columbia.

Among speakers who will address the 4-day conclave are W. H. Stewier, Fossil, association president; Governor Douglas McKay, Joseph C. O'Mahoney, U. S. senator from Wyoming; C. M. Granger, assistant chief, U. S. forest service, and Marion Clawson, director of the bureau of management, both from Washington, D. C.; Dr. Harry E. Kemper, bureau of animal industry, Albuquerque, New Mexico; Dan Fulton, Ismay, Montana, president of the American Society of Range Management; Dr. Elroy Nelson, University of Utah, Salt Lake City; Rita Campbell, National Livestock and Meat board, Chicago; G. N. Winder, Craig, Colorado, sheep producer and former president of the wool growers' association; Jerry Sotola, Armour & Co., Chicago; Donald Ramstetter, sheep producer from Golden, Colo.; Dr. Werner von Bergen, Forstman Wool Co., Passaic, New Jersey; and H. J. Devereaux, president of the American Wool Council, Rapid City, S. D.

Twenty-four young women from 18 to 22 years of age will add interest to the convention, Walter Holt, manager of the Pacific International Livestock exposition, and information specialist for the convention, reported today. These women will be chosen as finalists from state wool sewing contests throughout the west and Texas, and will model wool suits, coats and dresses which are products of their own handiwork. Winners from this group of finalists will be awarded scholarships, savings bonds, and other worthwhile prizes.

Wives of the sheep producers, members of the Women's auxiliary to the National Wool Growers association, have a four-day program arranged for them, too, Mr. Holt said.

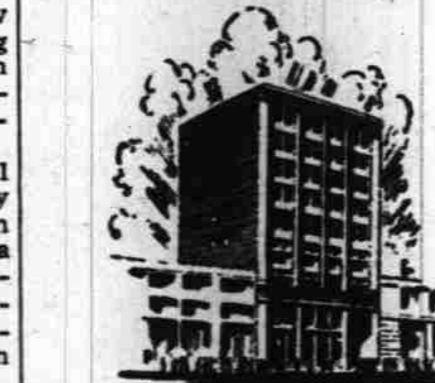

Scout District Meet Tonight

Activities for the next month will be discussed at the Cherry city Boy Scout district roundtable tonight at 7:30 o'clock in the First Methodist church.

Plans will be laid for the district's annual dinner on December 12.

Also discussed will be plans for an instructional meeting for new Cub Scout den mothers on November 26, at 8 p.m. in the First Methodist church. Mrs. Otto Yunker of Keizer will instruct.

The district's commissioners will meet Wednesday, November 28, at the Hayesville troop building at 7:30 p.m. Scheduled to attend are Council Commissioner William A. Baldwin of Lebanon and another council officer, Warren Black of Albany.

'Sprächen Sie Deutsch, Governor?'

A friendly discussion about the German and English languages resulted Tuesday in a Salem meeting of visiting German judiciary representatives and state officials. From left are Ray Stringham, Oregon supreme court librarian; Judge Alfred Weiler, German court of appeals; Gov. Douglas McKay; Judge Ludwig Kellermann, German circuit court; Chief Justice James Brand, state supreme court, and Robert Weill, Portland. (Statesman photo.)

Mrs. Ganiard Succumbs at Quinaby Home

Frances Mary Ganiard, a life long resident of Quinaby area who had spent most of her life in the family home, died unexpectedly at her home Tuesday morning. She was 69.

Born January 26, 1882, she attended school at Lake Labish, when it was known as Perkins school. In 1903 she was married to J. N. Ganiard in Salem. For a few years she and her husband lived in several other places near Salem, but they returned to the family home.

Her parents, who came to the United States from Austria and were married in Portland in 1874, left the home to a brother, Robert Diem with whom Mrs. Ganiard had lived. She also owned 40 acres, part of 160 acres in the Quinaby area left to her brother and another sister.

She was a charter member of the Labish chapter of the Royal Neighbors of America and had belonged to the organization more than 40 years. She also attended a parish Catholic church at Brooks for many years until the church was destroyed by fire. Since then she has been active in church work at St. Vincent de Paul.

She is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Helen E. Mayfield of Salem and Mrs. Genevieve Hug of Mt. Angel; two brothers, Robert M. Diem and Frank T. Diem, both of Salem, and four grandchildren.

Rosary will be said at 8 p.m. today in the Clough-Barrick chapel. Requiem mass will be at St. Vincent de Paul church Friday at 10 a.m.

Scott Tells of New Type of Motorcycle

A new type of motorcycle highlighted the Harley-Davidson convention in Milwaukee, Wis., according to Harry W. Scott, Salem dealer, who is at the convention this week.

Attending with Scott is his son, David L. Scott, and salesman, Frank L. Beckwith. The new motorcycle, said Scott, features front and rear wheel hydraulic springing, a 4 speed foot-operated gear shift and other improvements.

Doolittle Named Disaster Chief For Red Cross

Appointment of Frank Doolittle, Salem businessman, as disaster chairman for Marion county Red Cross chapter was announced Tuesday by Dale Bates, chapter chairman.

In this capacity he also gained appointment in the county civil defense organization as section chief for Red Cross, charged with responsibility for food, clothing and shelter relief. Doolittle replaces William C. Hill, who resigned some months ago.

Man 'Wanted' In Salem Held In Grants Pass

Allan James Brydon of Medford, wanted in Salem on charges involving a quick car "trade," has been arrested at Grants Pass on a forgery charge, according to Marion county sheriff's office.

Brydon allegedly drove his car into a Salem used car lot last month, drove out a newer auto on the pretense of a buying trial and never came back. The car was recovered in Bakersfield, Cal., where a similar deal was made. Brydon on Brydon, pending disposition of the forgery count.

Judges from Germany Visit Supreme Court

Two judges from Germany, in the United States to study court and penal procedure, were guests of the Oregon supreme court here Tuesday.

They are Ludwig Kellermann, Stuttgart, serving as district judge, and Alfred Weiler, Karlsruhe-Baden, member of the court of appeals. They were accompanied here by Robert Weill, former German attorney now a resident of Portland.

Following a conference with the supreme court the visitors talked briefly with Gov. Douglas McKay and then attended a Kiwanis club luncheon.

They spent most of the afternoon at the home of Chief Justice James T. Brand.

PORTLAND, Nov. 20—(AP)—Pricing problems were discussed here today by the western wood preserving industry advisory committee and officials of the office of price stabilization. The committee will recommend price regulations.

Board Signs Contract for Convicts Camp

Oregon's board of control Tuesday signed a contract with the state forestry department for the operation of a convicts' camp in the Tillamook burn.

All expenses of operating the camp with the exception of 22½ cents a day for food will be paid by the forestry division. The penitentiary will pay for food.

There are now approximately 50 convicts at the camp and this number probably will be increased to 100 or 200 later. The convicts will receive $1 a day for their work which will center largely on planting of trees and constructing trails and roads.

Overall cost to the forestry board was estimated at about $3 per day per convict.

Praise was given the board of control by the Oregon chapter, American Association of Social Workers, for the progress being made at the boys training school at Woodburn. "The progress is deserving of public recognition and support," a letter from the chapter read.

The board granted the state industrial accident commission permission to revise its working hours so its entire operating force would be dismissed at 4:45 p. m. instead of 5 p. m. This is necessary, Paul Gurske, commission chairman said, to make use of the new operating schedule of street buses. Sale of a state-owned house at 895 Chemeketa st., to make way for extension of the Summer street mall, was authorized by the board.

2 Men to Retire From State Jobs

The retirement of two veteran employees of the state purchasing division, now a part of Oregon's new finance department, was announced Tuesday.

Joe E. Wood, for 18 years in the purchasing division, resigned his position as of Monday night. He said he had no definite plans for the future but would take a needed rest. Wood came to Salem from Medford. Before coming to Oregon Wood had organized the Montana state purchasing department.

A. N. Wyrong, employed in the purchasing division for eight years, will retire about January 1. Wyrong said he would enter private industry.

The CORRECT Answers?

Before investing in real estate, you should know the correct answers to these questions:

1. Does the seller really own the property?
2. Can he give you a legal title?
3. Are all the claims and interests of others cleared?

A "T and T" title insurance policy protects you against the wrong answers to these and many other questions. One small premium is all you ever pay.
