On Etiquette

By Roberta Lee

Q. Does a man ever shake hands with a woman without removing his glove?

A. No. Of course, at a ball, or if he is an usher at a formal wedding, he does not remove a glove intended to be worn indoors. If on the street he cannot free his left hand to pull his right glove off, he says, "Excuse my glove." But he does not ask that an indoor glove be excused.

Q. Is it necessary to tip a waitress in a cafeteria or self-service restaurant, who merely carries your tray from the counter to your table?

A. This isn't necessary, nor is it customary. Some people do, however.

Q. Is it ever all right for the bride's mother to give her away, if she has no father?

A. Yes, if he wishes.
