Judge Rules Free House Scheme Legal

Dickson's market's plan to give away a house for Christmas as the result of a drawing gained legal sanction Friday in a ruling by Marion County Circuit Judge Rex Kimmell that the project is not a lottery.

The market had been sued by District Attorney E. O. Stadler, Jr., alleging that the store was conducting a lottery and seeking to close the store. The defendants' demurrer that the complaint lacked sufficient facts to constitute a cause of action was sustained.

Kimmell ruled, on the basis of a state supreme court decision, that one of the three elements necessary to a lottery was lacking, that of giving of consideration for an opportunity to be in on the drawing. The other elements, offering of a prize and awarding it by chance, were present, he said.

In regard to Stadler's contention that getting people to enter the store to receive tickets for the drawing constituted consideration, the court held that the drawing was "a publicity stunt." Kimmell wrote that it was "entirely conceivable that such lawful procedure might well have advertising value and greatly increase the business of the giver without losing its characteristic as a gratuity."

Stadler said he had not decided whether he will take further action in the case. He has 10 days in which to amend the complaint, or it might be appealed to the supreme court after judgment dismissing the case is rendered.

Farming Values Rise in State; Crop Receipts Above Average

By Lillie L. Madsen
Farm Editor, The Statesman

Farming in Oregon is growing and there is an upward trend in value added by processing Oregon farm products, according to a booklet issued Saturday by the federal cooperative extension service of Oregon State college.

Data in the bulletin show that farm receipts were more than 400 million dollars in 1950 and around 375 million as the 1945 to 1949 average. This is quite a come-uppance over the average from 1925 to 1929 of 134 million.

Admittedly, the authors say, some of the increase was due to higher prices, but as much if not more, was due to advances in farming. Of great importance has been the increased production per acre and per animal, and timely shifts in emphasis on the kinds of crop and animal products grown here. Increase of crop-land acreage was only nominal, but more was improved by drainage and irrigation. In fact land used for farm crops in Oregon has increased only about 10 per cent during the past 30 years. The total in late 1949 was set at 4,600,000 acres while in 1919, it was 4,260,000 acres. But all groups of crops, except hay and tree fruits and nuts, have increased over the past three decades. Tree fruit acreage has declined more than nuts have increased.

Forage-seed crops have shown an outstanding growth over the years. This group of crops accounted for eight per cent of the cropland harvested last year, compared to one per cent thirty years ago.

The livestock industry in Oregon presents a constantly changing picture. Beef cattle, dairy cattle, chickens and turkeys are constantly more numerous now than in 1920. But milk cows this year, at 235,000 head, were nearly a fifth below the wartime peak in 1943, and the lowest since 1930. Beef cows, on the other hand have increased with only minor fluctuations to reach a peak of 352,000. Twenty-five years ago, milk cows exceeded the beef cows. The situation is now reversed.

Meanwhile horses, mules, sheep and hogs have tended downward. They are now at the lowest point in Oregon in 80 years. Chicken and turkey numbers are above 1920

Habeas Corpus Writs Denied Two Convicts

Two state penitentiary inmates were given a legal setback in their quest for releases Friday by Marion county circuit court, which gave two others opportunity to file further evidence.

The prison wardens' demurrers against applications for writs of habeas corpus by Dan Morgan and J. H. Audett were sustained, and the men have 15 days to amend their answers.

Demurrers against application by Claude Revington Smallman and Sam Huffman were overruled by Circuit Judge George R. Duncan, giving the two prisoners a chance to prove their contentions that they were denied legal counsel when they faced charges, since this did not appear on the record.
