

Come on Lightning, Let's Go!

That's Lightning in the center. The desert terrapin, acquired by the 231st combat engineers while on maneuvers at Camp Desert Rock, Nev., is the not-too speedy mascot of the unit which camped overnight at the Salem reserve armory. Waiting for Lightning to show some action are Lt. Lester Jones, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lester Jones, 150 N. 21st st., and Maj. Paul Johnson, also a former Salem resident, now with the engineer unit. KP's Smile Despite Heavy Rain

The KP's were about the only members of the 231st combat engineer battalion that could manage a smile over chow in the rain Monday night. Mess call came at the height of Monday night's wind and rain storm and troops that braved the chow line practically got a bath at the same time. (Statesman photo).

Okay, So It Isn't So Bad

Rain-soaked but smiling was Sgt. Anthony Muller, Va., as he waded into a meal of ham, mashed potatoes and string beans after a cold, wet convoy ride from Klamath Falls Monday. Sgt. Muller is with company C of the 231st combat engineer battalion which stopped overnight in Salem enroute to its home station at Ft. Lewis, Wash. (Statesman photo).
