

Interesting Collection of Christmas Scenes Displayed at Croisan Creek Home

By MRS. CHET NELSON
Statesman News Service
ROBERTS, Dec. 20—Christmas with the true meaning of joy, peace, fellowship and love has come early to the Leon F. Frahm family who reside on Croisan Creek road. Their home has already been gladdened for the holidays by beautiful Christmas scenes, both religious and in the theme of winter.

angels, churches and farm buildings—has been a hobby with Mrs. Frahm for over 10 years. Each year her display grows and she adds another scene to be enjoyed by friends and neighbors during the Christmas holidays.

Making use of shelves in her large dining room window (pictured herewith), Mrs. Frahm has a figure of Christ set in clouds of spun glass with six small angel figures composing an orchestra playing various instruments, and they might well be singing "Hark! The Herald Angels Sing, Glory to the new born King." From their fluffy clouds they look down from the top shelf to the next one which is the sky scene with leaping, life-like reindeer and sleigh made by Mrs. Frahm from pieces of sterifoam. The sleigh is adorned by clear glass marbles giving a touch of fairy jewels, "and over the house-tops his coursers they flew, with a sleigh full of toys and Santa Claus too."

On the lower shelf is the quiet, peaceful scene of homes, gaily lighted, nestled in soft snow and flanked on either end by churches. Trees made from dried, wild asparagus fern, clever substitutes for our common shade trees naked of leaves in winter, fir trees, shrubbery, fawns, bunnies, a little old owl, and other miniature figures complete the scene. A beautiful scene of a snow-white cross and a guardian angel made from sterifoam, interspersed with gold metallic tinsel, reflects purity in to the holy Virgin Mother and Christ child figurine. A group of six exquisitely dressed story-book dolls as angels with small books in their hands also are included. More of the beautiful-gowned dolls parade across the front window, all cleverly dressed by Mrs. Frahm, even to their hats.
