On Etiquette

By Roberta Lee

Q. If a man is entertaining a group of friends in a restaurant or hotel dining room, in what order do they go to the table?

A. If the headwaiter leads the way to the table, the host goes first to seat his guests. The women follow next, and the men of the party last.

Q. When a man meets a woman on the street, with whom he is well acquainted, should he offer his hand?

A. This is strictly the woman's privilege, and it is better to let her make the first move.

Q. Should an usher at a church wedding offer his arm to every woman he escorts down the aisle, whether he knows her or not?

A. Certainly.

Social Club of Salem Chapter, OES, will meet for a covered dish luncheon at noon on Wednesday at the Masonic Temple. Mrs. Francis Colgan is chairman of the committee and cards will be in play after the luncheon.

LINE PATROL

How we stop telephone trouble — before it starts

"Will it work when I want it?"—that's perhaps the most important thing you want to know about your telephone. That's what we want to be sure of, too. And that's why repairmen, testers, inspectors, and many other telephone specialists are constantly at work to make sure your calls go through. The term we use is preventive maintenance. And it simply means testing and inspecting thousands of miles of lines and cables, and checking switching equipment constantly—on foot, in trucks and electronically—to find and fix any part of our complex system which might cause future trouble.

While you sleep, a technician with an electronic "line patrol" combs over circuits in the office to see that they're operating at top efficiency. This is only one of the ways, here in the West, that we work 'round the clock, and are constantly planning ahead, to keep your telephone the dependable servant it is.

"Pole stubbers" at work: A routine inspection has revealed a pole which shows damage at the ground line. And this crew has been dispatched to reinforce it with a short length. When they're through, it will be as strong as new. And they'll have saved much of the cost of a new pole.

"Trouble detective": If electronic equipment spots possible line trouble, testing devices locate it—and a crew is sent to stop the trouble before it can interrupt service. Elsewhere, alarm systems and flashing light signals are alert to help make sure you'll have the world's most dependable telephone service.

Your telephone is one of today's best bargains

Few of the things you use in your daily life have gone up less, in these inflationary times, than the rates for telephone service. Even though our costs of providing service have skyrocketed, your telephone calls remain one of today's best buys.
